Furry Admits Radar Project Employed Reds

Harvard Professor
Refuses To Reveal
Communist Workers

BOSTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—A Harvard professor—frequently the target for Sen. Joseph A. McCarthy's anti-Red probes—testified today he was one of a half dozen Communist party members who worked on a top secret radar project during the war.

But Prof. Wendell H. Furry, 47, flatly declined to name any of his associates for the Wisconsin Republican, sitting as a one man investigating subcommittee.

Furry, a physics professor, took the stand on that as did another Harvard man, Leon J. Kamin, a $3,200 a year research assistant at Harvard.

"I do not think that my duty to my country requires me to become a political informer," Kamin said in a prepared statement.

Kamin admitted past membership in the Communist party. Furry told the House Un-American Activities Committee last April he has not been a party member since at least March, 1951.

Prof. Furry, who waived his constitutional rights after claiming the privilege of the Fifth Amendment in three previous appearances before investigating committees, said that "I am not seeking to protect the guilty from prosecution—I wish merely to secure the innocent from persecution."

McCarthy told Furry, as he was temporarily excused from the witness stand, that his case will be submitted to the Senate for contempt proceedings and to a grand jury. McCarthy also told 26-year-old Kamin his case will be recommended for contempt proceedings.

McCarthy said that in his opinion the Furry case was "one of the most aggravated cases of contempt" he had seen.

"To me it is inconceivable that a university which has had the reputation it (Harvard) has had keeps this creature on, teaching our children," McCarthy said.

Furry testified that none of the other five Communists who worked with him in the radar laboratories at Massachusetts Institute of Technology are working on government projects now.

He said he knew where they were, but he wouldn't tell McCarthy.

Jewels Stolen Worth $200,000

DETROIT, Jan. 15 (AP)—A New York jeweler told police today that two gunmen bound and gagged him in his Statler Hotel room and escaped with more than $200,000 worth of diamonds and other jewelry.

The victim, Anthony Seaton, said that although bound and gagged shortly before noon he managed to stagger to a telephone and jiggle the receiver until the operator, noting something wrong, sent a bellboy to his room to investigate.

Seaton said he was president of the Henry Antoville galleries New York.

Seaton reported the loot included nine of 18 diamonds which he brought to Detroit Tuesday for sale. The remainder had been left in the hotel safe.

Seaton told police the jewels belonged to Harry Winston of New York, one of the world's foremost diamond collectors.

Seaton collapsed after he was freed. A hotel physician administered stimulants, but it was a half hour before police could find out what had happened and broadcast an alarm.

Husband Poisoner Executed In Ohio's Electric Chair

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 15 (AP)—A gray-haired grandmother who slipped poison into her husband's milk died in the electric chair at Ohio Penitentiary tonight.

Mrs. Dovie Blanche Dean, 55, was the second woman executed in Ohio's penal history. The other also was convicted of poison killing.

Silent and with eyes downcast, Mrs. Dean was helped into the room and strapped to the chair—making no sound and showing no outward emotion.

Prior to the execution, Mrs. Dean sat in a small cell adjoining the death room. She drank coffee but refused two small cookies a matron offered her.

"I'll have a couple later," the condemned woman replied.

T-H Act Revisions Hearing Set Jan. 25

Mitchell Will Open Testimony

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—President Eisenhower's strike-vote proposal is headed for a full airing during two weeks of hearings on the Taft-Hartley law which Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) announced today would start Jan. 25.

House Probers Are Split Over Russell Firing

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The House Un-American Activities Committee split angrily today over the firing of Louis J. Russell, its chief investigator.

Some members appeared to be at loggerheads over the way the committee is conducting its hunt for Reds and other subversives, and there were signs that other members of the staff may be leaving soon.

Rep. Kearney (R-NY) said the staff "is shot to hell with jealousy and back-biting." He added that there are several members of the staff who ought to be dismissed.

But both he and Rep. Walter (D-Pa), senior Democratic member of the committee, told reporters they were surprised that Chairman Velde (R-Ill) had fired Russell from his $11,600 a year post. Velde announced the dismissal yesterday.

"The chairman broke faith with the members of the committee," Walter asserted. "The action he took was in direct violation of the decision of the committee."

Kearney said he didn't question Velde's authority to fire Russell, a 42-year-old former FBI agent who has been on the staff since 1945, but that he objected to the way Velde did it.

"He could have used better judgment," Kearney said. "He used the wrong approach."

Velde replied that he is confident a majority of the committee "will agree with my action." He said there can be no question of his authority since the committee, when it organized a year ago, unanimously adopted a resolution giving him authority to hire aides and "handle all problems pertaining to the staff."

Asked by a reporter why Russell was dismissed, Velde said "it was a matter of his interfering with the efficient operation of the committee staff. That's all I have to say."

He denied an assertion by Walter that Russell had been fired because Velde had some one else in mind for the job.

Fire Destroys Four Warehouses, 21 Hurt

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—A raging fire today destroyed four historic warehouses. Twenty-one firemen were injured and the loss unofficially was estimated at three million dollars.

Fifteen of the fire fighters were hurt when a wall blew out and buried three fire engines under tons of debris.

Thirty-eight hundred television sets stored in three of the ancient, four-story buildings went up in flames.

The warehouses, in the Red Hook section of Brooklyn, were built during the Civil War for use as ammunition depots.

"Third Type" Bomb

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Sen. Wiley (R-Wis) used an arresting phrase about a "third type" bomb in Senate debate on the St. Lawrence seaway project, but he said today it was based on speculation rather than any definite information.

Textile Manufacturers Confer With Soviets

MOSCOW, Jan. 15 (AP)—Twelve British textile machinery manufacturers arrived here today for negotiations with the Soviet government. A spokesman said if their anticipations are realized they will get a "pretty big order."

The group, which came here on Soviet invitation, said they expected their talks here would last a fortnight.

All appeals were lost. Then the case came to the governor for executive clemency, while the prisoner bided her time at the Ohio Reformatory for Women at Marysville.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche removed the last hope today by declining to step in with a change from death to life imprisonment.

"Regrettably," he said in a formal statement, "based upon the study which I made and in spite of my desire to be of help to her, I cannot justifiably intervene."

$12,500 Pay Hike Proposed For Congress

Election Year Fear
May Cause Members
To Vote Less Money

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Congress eyed hungrily today an officially proposed $12,500-a-year pay raise for every member. But election year fears of what the folks back home might think caused doubt the lawmakers would vote themselves that much.

A nonpartisan 18-member commission reported this morning that senators and House members have been "grossly underpaid" for a long time and should raise their own salaries from the present $15,000 to $27,500.

Other Raises Sought

The commission, headed by Philadelphia lawyer Bernard Segal, also proposed more money for other government officials:

1. $40,000 salaries for the vice president and the speaker of the House, plus "adequate" expense funds. They now get $30,000 salaries and $10,000 expense accounts.

2. $39,500 for associate justices of the Supreme Court—a $14,500 increase. The chief justice, who now gets $25,500, would be raised to $40,000.

3. $27,500 for U.S. district judges, who now get $15,000, with comparable increases for other federal jurists.

Segal, who presented the report to President Eisenhower, quoted the chief executive as saying he was "wholeheartedly in favor" of substantial increases for members of Congress and judges—and for U.S. attorneys as well. The attorneys' pay wasn't covered in the present survey.

Segal also told reporters Vice President Nixon and House Speaker Martin (R-Mass) assured him they would seek prompt action by Congress.

Privately, most members were quick to say a $27,500 salary would be none too high for the work they do and the expenses they incur.

Not many cared to go on record, however, in favor of an increase which might sound bigger than necessary to the voters.

Raise May Be Voted

Chairman Taber (R-NY) of the House Appropriations Committee said he believed a raise would be voted—but probably not as much as the proposed $12,500.

Besides calling for salary increases, the commission proposed:

1. A government-provided official mansion for the vice president.

2. A "more realistic" way of paying official expenses of members of Congress—including provision for six trips home and back each session. Nowadays a member is reimbursed—at 20 cents a mile—for only one such round trip.

3. A new study to devise pensions for widows of lawmakers and judges.

4. A periodic review of congressional salaries. Segal said it's so long between increases now that the rise each time "is so big that Congress finds it hard to approve it."

Frigid Air Pours Across Rockies

[By The Associated Press]

A mass of frigid air poured across the northern Rockies and Northern Plains Friday.

Even at midday temperatures were below zero in northern Minnesota, North Dakota and Montana.

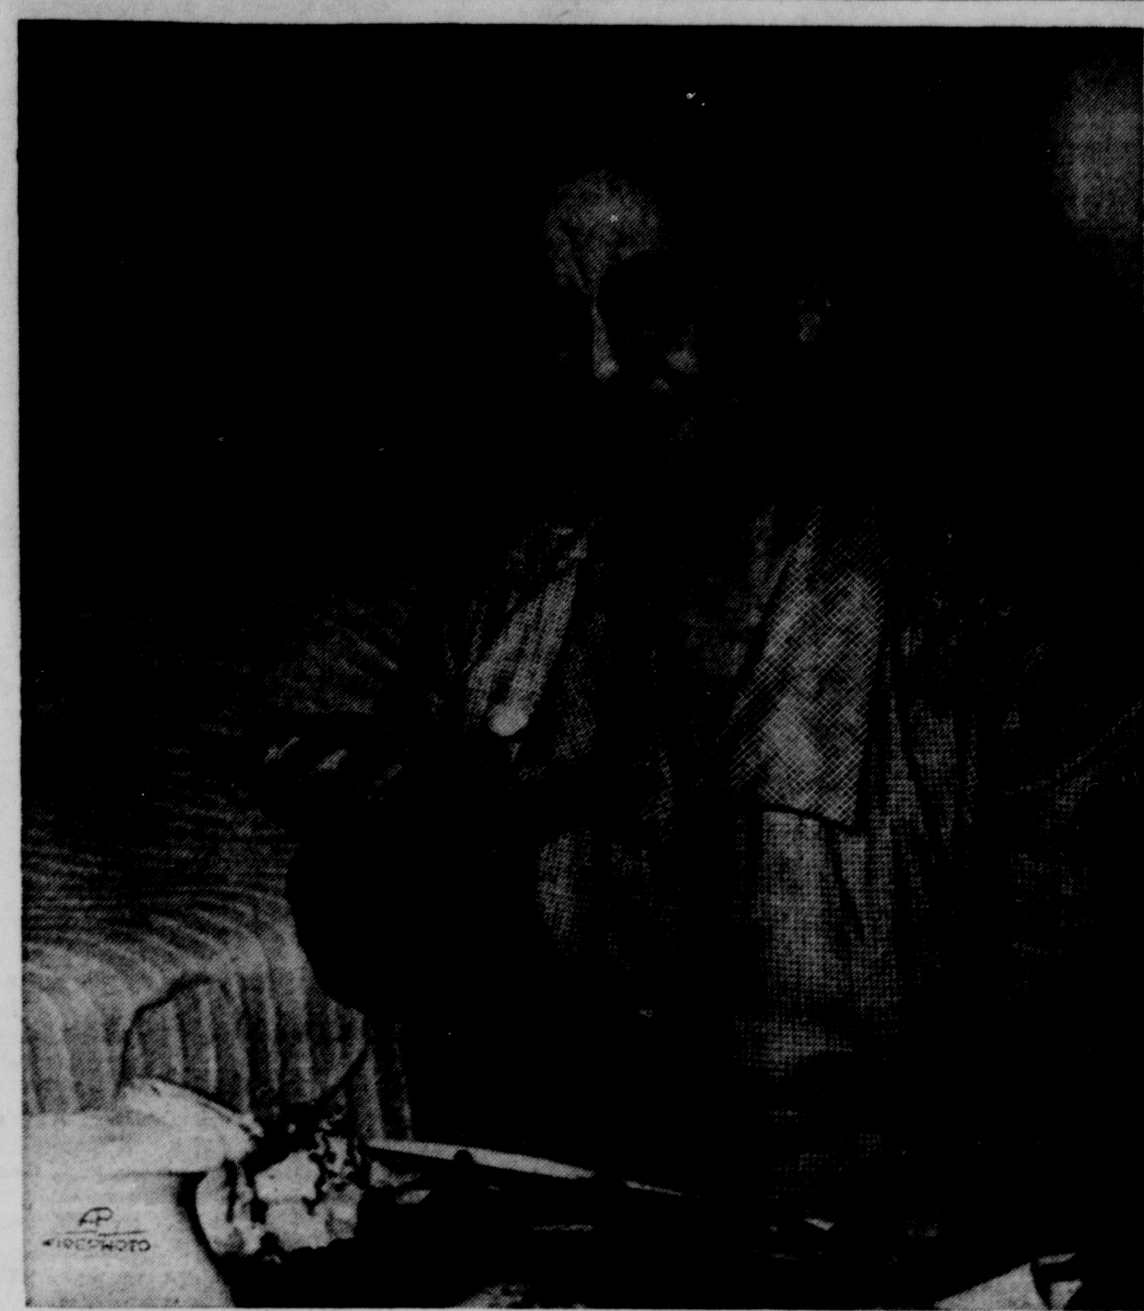

The nation was under a natural crazy quilt, with contrasting patches of intense cold, balmy warmth, snow, thundershowers, rain and fog.

At noon Friday there was a 104 degree range in the nation's temperatures—from 80 degrees above at Key West, Fla., to 24 below at Cut Bank, Mont.

Butler Claims St. Lawrence Plan "Unwise"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Sen. Butler (R-Md) in a speech of more than 30,000 words today opposed United States participation in the proposed St. Lawrence Seaway as "unwise" and said Canada does not want the U. S. to join in the project.

The text of Butler's prepared speech, which he read over a five-hour, 19-minute period, contained 167 pages and an estimated 34,000 words.

In addition, as the Senate completed its third day of debate on controversial legislation that would authorize this country to join with Canada in building the 27-foot deep Great Lakes to the Atlantic waterway, Butler answered frequent questions that greatly increased the wordage.

Butler's speech did nothing to shake the confidence of the pro-seaway Senate forces that they have the votes to win approval. The final vote will not come until next week.

Butler, who engaged in a minor squabble with Sen. Aiken (R-Vt) over the validity of testimony given a Senate committee by two military witnesses, made these main points:

1. Canada does not want this country to join in the project.

2. The seaway, as far as the United States is concerned is "unwise."

3. There is no "reasonable prospect" that the seaway could be made to pay for itself through tolls on shipping.

4. It would have "serious adverse effects" upon railroads, the coal industry, and eastern and Gulf Coast ports.

5. It would be of "consequence" from the standpoint of national defense.

Zoo Director Seeks Mate For Gorilla

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—Baltimore's zoo director today said for the Belgian Congo to find a mate for the zoo's 5-year-old gorilla, "Robert."

Arthur R. Watson, leaving on the liner United States, said no gorilla has ever been born in captivity, but added:

"You should see a baby gorilla born in captivity in the next few years."

Watson said gorillas usually do not mate until 12 years of age, but he said "you have to bring them together long before that time so that they can get used to each other."

TUCSON, Ariz., Jan. 15 (AP)—The man filled out the forms as required under Arizona's new voter registration law.

The clerk took one look at them and then protested:

Guided Missiles Go To Europe

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Air Force announced tonight it will send two squadrons of pilotless bombers (guided missiles) to Germany this year. These craft are capable of carrying atomic explosives and are intended to strengthen Western European defenses against any Communist aggression.

Air Secretary Harold Talbot said in a brief statement that two Air Force squadrons using the B61 Matador pilotless craft will be deployed in Europe "for use in NATO defense."

The decision obviously is part of the recently announced policy of the United States to be prepared to retaliate instantly and with "great capacity" against any aggression.

Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson told reporters that this "implements what we said we were going to do when we were over to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization conference" in December.

He was asked if the move would mean a "displacement of troops" in view of the increased fire power provided by the guided missiles. He replied "No, not in itself."

Deputy Mau Mau Leader Captured

NAIROBI, Kenya, Jan. 15 (AP)—The British announced today the capture of a deputy leader of the anti-white Mau Mau in a skirmish 60 miles north of Nairobi.

Authorities said the rebel leader, known as Gen. China, was taken after he was shot in the throat by British forces fighting a Mau Mau gang in the Nyeri District. China is considered second in command to Dedan Kimathi, field commander of the native organization which wants to drive all white men from this British African colony.

Industry, Unions Call For Trades Measure Repeal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Twenty-five national industry organizations and 13 unions today called for repeal of the Trade Agreements Act and the restoration of tariff-fixing power to Congress.

An eight-point program to protect domestic industry from foreign competition was announced by the newly-formed "Nationwide Committee of Industry, Agriculture and Labor on Import-Export Policy."

The program was adopted Wednesday at a closed all-day meeting here. It represented a mustering of opposition to the expected liberalized trade and tariff recommendations due next week from President Eisenhower's Commission on Foreign Economic Policy, headed by steelmaker Clarence B. Randall.

The protection program would retain the "buy American" act—expected to oppose—and calls on Congress to empower "an agency of its own, preferably the existing Tariff Commission," to adjust tariff rates as needed henceforth subject only to congressional veto.

O. R. Strackbein, formerly a special expert with the Tariff Commission and a trade commissioner with the Commerce Department, is chairman of the committee. He announced its program at a news conference.

Weeks Opposes Bargain Sale Of Surplus Butter To Soviet

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Weeks today took a stand against bargain sales of butter to Russia.

Reacting to an exporter's offer to buy surplus U.S. butter at a reported price of 50 cents a pound for shipment behind the Iron Curtain, Weeks said:

"I shall not approve any application which would permit any exporter to buy butter at a considerably lower price than those paid by American housewives and then send that butter into Russia."

Earlier in the week, Weeks had made what looked like a cautious offer to do business with Russia and her European satellites. In his quarterly report on export controls, he said "it has been and still is."

Radio Beams Message To China Troops

Says Acceptance
Of POWs By U. N.
"Critical" Move

SEOUL, Saturday, Jan. 16 (AP)—President Syngman Rhee today set Feb. 23 as the deadline when he considers South Korea will be free to attempt unification with North Korea in any way it chooses. This could mean a renewed outbreak of fighting.

Rhee said his deadline is "180 days from the start of the Korean preliminary peace conference talks." They began Oct. 26.

PANMUNJOM, Saturday, Jan. 16 (AP)—Peiping radio last night told Red China's troops in Korea that the U.N. Command would imperil the truce by taking back 22,000 prisoners from an anti-Red camp Wednesday and would "wreck" it by setting them free a week from today.

The Chinese language broadcast to Communist soldiers on the alert during the armistice was the first public reaction from inside the Bamboo Curtain to India's announced plan of returning disputed prisoners to the two commands Wednesday.

Makes Situation Critical

Peiping told the Red soldiers that U. N. acceptance of the soldiers would make the Korean situation more critical. But it added that further plans to free them as civilians next Saturday "will wreck the Korean truce."

India renewed its determination to go through with its plan regardless of whether the two sides want to accept the prisoners.

Whether the Reds would refuse to take back 21 Americans, a British and 325 South Koreans in a pro-Red camp was not made clear.

The U.N. Command was not only preparing to take back the 22,000 but to free them as civilians one week from today.

An Indian spokesman said the prisoners will have ample opportunity during the transfer to change their minds and be sent back home.

The U.N. Command expressed willingness to take back custody of the 22,000 prisoners shortly after India announced Thursday its intention to free them three days ahead of the Jan. 23 deadline.

Red China kept silent until last night. Then Peiping radio beamed a Chinese language broadcast to the soldiers.

As heard in Tokyo, the Red China broadcast was couched in somewhat general terms.

Reds Bolster Bases

The broadcast said America's expressed intention to take back the prisoners made the Korean situation much more critical. But it did not say just what might stem from that.

Thursday in Washington, the U. S. Army chief of staff, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said the Reds appear to have bolstered their air bases in Korea and to have a ground force there of around a million men but there were no signs of Communist intent to renew the war.

The Indian spokesman who emphasized India's intention to go through with the prisoner transfer plan said India felt a deep moral responsibility for seeing to it that every prisoner got a fair choice to go home or not.

Harvard Professor Refuses To Reveal Communist Workers

BOSTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—A Harvard professor—frequently the target for Sen. Joseph A. McCarthy's anti-Red probes—testified today he was one of a half dozen Communist party members who worked on a top secret radar project during the war.

But Prof. Wendell H. Furry, 47, flatly declined to name any of his associates for the Wisconsin Republican, sitting as a one man investigating subcommittee.

Furry, a physics professor, took the stand on that as did another Harvard man, Leon J. Kamin, a $3,200 a year research assistant at Harvard.

He said he knew where they were, but he wouldn't tell McCarthy.

Answers 18-Year Murder Charge

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—A New York bricklayer went back to New Jersey today to answer for a murder 18 years ago that was almost—but never quite—forgotten.

A faded old wedding picture tripped up Emilio Saginario, 42, and he remarked wearily after his arrest: "I've been wondering and wondering when they would catch up with me."

He is accused of killing his first wife, Ver, 22, in 1936, after she left him. She was slain in Jersey City, N.J.

Sagarino came to New York, took the names of James E. Caruso and fashioned a new life for himself. A bricklayer, he remarried and had three children. His second wife, Mary, is expecting a fourth child.

The murder was almost forgotten until a month ago when Sgt. Charles E. Griffen of the Jersey City police department was assigned to see if he could dig up anything new.

He had a faded wedding picture of Saginario and his slain wife and by showing it to old friends and construction union members he was able to follow the fugitive's trail.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Sen. Butler (R-Md) in a speech of more than 30,000 words today opposed United States participation in the proposed St. Lawrence Seaway as "unwise" and said Canada does not want the U. S. to join in the project.

The text of Butler's prepared speech, which he read over a five-hour, 19-minute period, contained 167 pages and an estimated 34,000 words.

In addition, as the Senate completed its third day of debate on controversial legislation that would authorize this country to join with Canada in building the 27-foot deep Great Lakes to the Atlantic waterway, Butler answered frequent questions that greatly increased the wordage.

Butler's speech did nothing to shake the confidence of the pro-seaway Senate forces that they have the votes to win approval. The final vote will not come until next week.

Butler, who engaged in a minor squabble with Sen. Aiken (R-Vt) over the validity of testimony given a Senate committee by two military witnesses, made these main points:

1. Canada does not want this country to join in the project.

2. The seaway, as far as the United States is concerned is "unwise."

3. There is no "reasonable prospect" that the seaway could be made to pay for itself through tolls on shipping.

4. It would have "serious adverse effects" upon railroads, the coal industry, and eastern and Gulf Coast ports.

5. It would be of "consequence" from the standpoint of national defense.

He's Housewife, Arizona's Voter Tells Registrar

TUCSON, Ariz., Jan. 15 (AP)—The man filled out the forms as required under Arizona's new voter registration law.

The clerk took one look at them and then protested: "Sir, you should list your occupation, not your wife's."

"Don't change it," he retorted emphatically. "My wife works. She makes me do the housework. What else would you call my job?"

"I'm a housewife!"

Guided Missiles Go To Europe

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Air Force announced tonight it will send two squadrons of pilotless bombers (guided missiles) to Germany this year. These craft are capable of carrying atomic explosives and are intended to strengthen Western European defenses against any Communist aggression.

Air Secretary Harold Talbot said in a brief statement that two Air Force squadrons using the B61 Matador pilotless craft will be deployed in Europe "for use in NATO defense."

The decision obviously is part of the recently announced policy of the United States to be prepared to retaliate instantly and with "great capacity" against any aggression.

Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson told reporters that these "implements what we said we were going to do when we were over to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization conference" in December.

He was asked if the move would mean a "displacement of troops" in view of the increased fire power provided by the guided missiles. He replied "No, not in itself."

Deputy Mau Mau Leader Captured

NAIROBI, Kenya, Jan. 15 (AP)—The British announced today the capture of a deputy leader of the anti-white Mau Mau in a skirmish 60 miles north of Nairobi.

Authorities said the rebel leader, known as Gen. China, was taken after he was shot in the throat by British forces fighting a Mau Mau gang in the Nyeri District. China is considered second in command to Dedan Kimathi, field commander of the native organization which wants to drive all white men from this British African colony.

Radio Beams Message To China Troops

Says Acceptance Of POWs By U. N. "Critical" Move

SEOUL, Saturday, Jan. 16 (AP)—President Syngman Rhee today set Feb. 23 as the deadline when he considers South Korea will be free to attempt unification with North Korea in any way it chooses. This could mean a renewed outbreak of fighting.

Rhee said his deadline is "180 days from the start of the Korean preliminary peace conference talks." They began Oct. 26.

PANMUNJOM, Saturday, Jan. 16 (AP)—Peiping radio last night told Red China's troops in Korea that the U. N. Command would imperil the truce by taking back 22,000 prisoners from an anti-Red camp Wednesday and would "wreck" it by setting them free a week from today.

The Chinese language broadcast to Communist soldiers on the alert during the armistice was the first public reaction from inside the Bamboo Curtain to India's announced plan of returning disputed prisoners to the two commands Wednesday.

Makes Situation Critical

Peiping told the Red soldiers that U. N. acceptance of the soldiers would make the Korean situation more critical. But it added that further plans to free them as civilians next Saturday "will wreck the Korean truce."

India renewed its determination to go through with its plan regardless of whether the two sides want to accept the prisoners.

Whether the Reds would refuse to take back 21 Americans, a British and 325 South Koreans in a pro-Red camp was not made clear.

The U. N. Command was not only preparing to take back the 22,000 but to free them as civilians one week from today.

An Indian spokesman said the prisoners will have ample opportunity during the transfer to change their minds and be sent back home.

The U. N. Command expressed willingness to take back custody of the 22,000 prisoners shortly after India announced Thursday its intention to free them three days ahead of the Jan. 23 deadline.

Red China kept silent until last night. Then Peiping radio beamed a Chinese language broadcast to the soldiers.

As heard in Tokyo, the Red China broadcast was couched in somewhat general terms.

Reds Bolster Bases

The broadcast said America's expressed intention to take back the prisoners made the Korean situation much more critical. But it did not say just what might stem from that.

Thursday in Washington, the U. S. Army chief of staff, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said the Reds appear to have bolstered their air bases in Korea and to have a ground force there of around a million men but there were no signs of Communist intent to renew the war.

The Indian spokesman who emphasized India's intention to go through with the prisoner transfer plan said India felt a deep moral responsibility for seeing to it that every prisoner got a fair choice to go home or not.

Weeks Opposes Bargain Sale Of Surplus Butter To Soviet

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Weeks today took a stand against bargain sales of butter to Russia.

Reacting to an exporter's offer to buy surplus U.S. butter at a reported price of 50 cents a pound for shipment behind the Iron Curtain, Weeks said:

"I shall not approve any application which would permit any exporter to buy butter at a considerably lower price than those paid by American housewives and then send that butter into Russia."

Earlier in the week, Weeks had made what looked like a cautious offer to do business with Russia and her European satellites. In his quarterly report on export controls, he said "it has been and still is."

The report said that "to a considerable degree" the small amount of trade with Russia has been due to "a lack of interest on the part, ia.

of the Soviet bloc in obtaining non-strategic and consumer type goods" rather than to American restrictions.

Fresh Storms Plague Rescue Teams In Alps

Helicopter Crashes,
New Avalanches Slow
Aid For Sick, Homeless

VIENNA, Austria, Jan. 15 (AP)—Fresh blizzards touched off new avalanches in the Alps today, slowed aid for victims of earlier slides and caused a U. S. helicopter to crash land on a mercy flight in Austria's "valley of death."

The blizzards struck as severe weather blanketed much of western Europe. Whether further deaths attend the new avalanches remained to be determined.

Snow slides since Monday had caused 149 deaths in four nations—Austria, Switzerland, West Germany and Italy. In Austria, nine persons are still missing and hundreds injured.

Most of the work of evacuating the sick and homeless from snow-bound Austrian villages fell to five U. S. helicopters.

The U. S. Air Force said the whirly birds took between 50 and 60 persons today from the Blons area of the Walser Valley, where 45 died earlier this week. Capt. Billy K. Sayers of Lubbock, Tex., spearheaded the operation by taking out 34.

The helicopter that crashed dropped on a hillside near Blons, 10 minutes after taking off in fog and rain from rescue headquarters at Ludesch, at the bottom of the valley. The crash was believed caused by mechanical failure of the tail rotor drive shaft. The four-man crew escaped injury.

The crewmen were identified as Capt. William H. McKee of Sioux City, Iowa; Maj. Edward J. Ontko of Marblehead, Ohio, who is commander of the 84th Air Rescue Squadron at Furstentfeldbruck; Maj. Rufus Hessberg and A.C.C. Anthony Santos. Another helicopter flew them to Bludeniz.

The storms brought ground rescue work almost to a standstill. Men who had been digging for the missing feverishly began shoveling deep trenches in the path of possible new avalanches. They hoped the trenches would trap the snow masses if they started to move.

Danger from floods for more than 1,000 villagers in another Austrian valley—that of the Soekl River diminished. A 600-foot wide snowslide thundered down the great Knallstein Mountain and blocked the Soekl yesterday. A mile-long flood piled up behind the snow barrier near the village of St. Nikolai.

The village was cut off from the world, but it messaged today that the water had broken through the barrier.

Stripper Faces Term In Prison

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15 (AP)—A brunette stripper today faced the prospect of joining her husband in prison.

Mrs. Frances Ford, 27, was convicted yesterday of grand theft and forgery for cashing a $1,000 check signed by a 75-year-old hotel owner. She will be sentenced Feb. 5.

Her husband, Heuy (Rocky) Ford, a onetime boxer, is serving a Folsom prison sentence for armed robbery.

Mrs. Ford said the hotel owner, Bert T. Anderson, wanted to marry her and on various occasions offered her checks and cash which she refused. She said she had been cooking for him and driving him about town and that he gave her the check in gratitude.

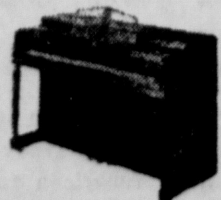

Anderson testified he had been leaving blank, signed checks for his manager to pay bills but had not authorized Mrs. Ford to cash any.

He recently was placed under guardianship of his son, Charles, who signed the complaint against Mrs. Ford.

Family Settles Factory Strike

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 15 (AP)—The family strike against the venetian blind factory of George V. Harrison Sr. was settled today—he fired his wife and promised his son a raise.

The elder Harrison, whose wife and 19-year-old son have been picketing the business for four days, promised to sign a contract with the AFL Carpenters Union.

That will mean a substantial salary increase for George Jr., who had complained he couldn't afford to be married on his pay of 75 cents an hour.

The father, in firing his wife, declared she should return to her status of housewife and mother of six children. She had been receiving no pay for regular work at the factory.

"I guess I can't collect my three years' back pay now," Mrs. Harrison remarked to Tom Hathaway, business agent of the union.

"That is a domestic matter now, lady," Hathaway replied.

Some Security Risks Are Found USIA Head Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The director of the government's overseas information-propaganda service testified today that some 10 or 20 of its 7,800 employees have been fired or allowed to resign as security risks since Aug. 1.

Theodore C. Streibert, head of the much-investigated U. S. Information Agency for the last five months, said he is "confident that we have no subversives" on the payroll now.

His figures on security risks were only an off-hand estimate, produced under questioning by Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.) at a hearing of a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee. Streibert said he would supply an accurate count later.

The 10 or 20, he said, weren't Communists. In most instances, he said, they were dismissed or permitted to quit under fire as "a matter of stability." He didn't explain that, other than to say they were security risks rather than loyalty cases.

USIA officials said that as of Nov. 30 the agency employed 1,174 Americans and 6,682 foreigners in its operations in 78 countries.

The subcommittee chairman, Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), told newsmen he had heard a larger number of USIA workers than the 10 or 20 Streibert mentioned had left because of security reasons shortly before Streibert took charge. Streibert agreed that "of course a lot of action had been taken prior to Aug. 1."

USIA was set up last year as an independent agency to take over from the State Department the Voice of America and most of the government's other information and propaganda activities directed toward other nations.

Both Hickenlooper's subcommittee and the Senate Investigations subcommittee headed by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) have investigated the service and criticized it.

London Zoo Stock Is Worth $212,909

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)—London Zoo took annual stock today and found it had 3,203 birds, animals and reptiles worth 76,039 pounds eight shillings ($212,909.20) with Guy the gorilla, topping the list at 1,500 pounds (4,200). Marmaduke, the 200-year-old giant tortoise, headed the reptile department. He's worth 250 pounds ($700).

Governor To Speak

CAMBRIDGE, MD., Jan. 15 (AP)—Featured speaker for the Republican Lincoln Day dinner here Feb. 8 will be Gov. McKeldin.

Invitations also have been sent to three other leading Maryland Republicans, Sens. Butler and Beall, and Rep. Miller.

Byrd Adds Evans McKinney To Committee For Campaign

(By The Associated Press)

H. C. Byrd's high-flying campaign for the Democratic nomination as governor moved along at its established fast clip today as the former University of Maryland president announced another addition to his committee of supporters.

Byrd said in Baltimore that J. Evans McKinney of Elkton would be chairman of the "Byrd for Governor" campaign in Cecil County.

A past president of the Young Democrats of Cecil County, McKinney has been active in local politics. Walter E. Buck, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee for Cecil County will be active in the campaign, too, Byrd's office said.

Meanwhile, it was expected George P. Mahoney, Baltimore County contractor, would soon come up with an announcement regarding his candidacy. The announcement was expected to come after a meeting with Eastern Shore leaders over the weekend.

Other political developments: A Baltimore lawyer, Frederick W. Brune, was being billed as the leading prospect to fill a Court of Appeals vacancy expected to be created within a few days.

Sen. Beall (R-Md.) said the chief judge of the state's highest court, Simon E. Sobeloff, would be nominated soon as U. S. Solicitor General.

Sobeloff has been widely described as the Eisenhower Administration's choice for the important national post.

And at Annapolis, State House sources hinted Miss Bertha Adkins of Salisbury, who heads women's activities of the GOP National GOP National Committee, might run for Congress from the First (Eastern Shore) District.

The way would be opened for the popular party leader to make her bid when an expected judicial appointment comes through for the present First District congressman, Edward T. Miller.

Both of Maryland's Republican senators have backed Miller for a U. S. District Court judgeship in Baltimore.

Also on the list of expected political developments was a move from State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes. Byrd has been wooing the popular Eastern Shoreman in the hopes of landing him on his ticket. Tawes is expected to file soon—without endorsing anyone.

Polio Vaccine Not Established

BATIMORE, Jan. 15 (AP)—Maryland's Board of Health today expressed fear some publicity about the forthcoming polio vaccinations may lead many to jump to the conclusion an effective vaccine already has been developed.

"It should be clearly understood" the board said, "that as yet there is no scientific proof that this vaccine is effective in preventing polio in humans."

The National Polio Foundation is sponsoring the field test in which thousands of second graders across the country will get polio vaccinations.

The Maryland board has agreed tentatively to assist in the trial in one county. The county has not yet been designated.

In its formal statement the board said "The real nature and purpose of this study should not be obscured by wishful thinking."

The Board joined Dr. Jonas Salk, who developed the vaccine, in declaring "we do not want to allow any distortion of the fact that we still are actively in the stage of clinical investigation."

CAMBRIDGE, MD., Jan. 15 (AP)—Featured speaker for the Republican Lincoln Day dinner here Feb. 8 will be Gov. McKeldin.

Invitations also have been sent to three other leading Maryland Republicans, Sens. Butler and Beall, and Rep. Miller.

Byrd Adds Evans McKinney To Committee For Campaign

[By The Associated Press]
H. C. Byrd's high-flying campaign for the Democratic nomination as governor moved along at its established fast clip today as the former University of Maryland president announced another addition to his committee of supporters.

Byrd said in Baltimore that J. Evans McKinney of Elkton would be chairman of the "Byrd for Governor" campaign in Cecil County.

A past president of the Young Democrats of Cecil County, McKinney has been active in local politics. Walter E. Buck, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee for Cecil County will be active in the campaign, too, Byrd's office said.

Meanwhile, it was expected George P. Mahoney, Baltimore County contractor, would soon come up with an announcement regarding his candidacy. The announcement was expected to come after a meeting with Eastern Shore leaders over the weekend.

Other political developments: A Baltimore lawyer, Frederick W. Brune, was being billed as the leading prospect to fill a Court of Appeals vacancy expected to be created within a few days.

Sen. Beall (R-Md.) said the chief judge of the state's highest court, Simon E. Sobeloff, would be nominated soon as U. S. Solicitor General.

Sobeloff has been widely described as the Eisenhower Administration's choice for the important national post.

And at Annapolis, State House sources hinted Miss Bertha Adkins of Salisbury, who heads women's activities of the GOP National GOP National Committee, might run for Congress from the First (Eastern Shore) District.

The way would be opened for the popular party leader to make her bid when an expected judicial appointment comes through for the present First District congressman, Edward T. Miller.

Both of Maryland's Republican senators have backed Miller for a U. S. District Court judgeship in Baltimore.

Also on the list of expected political developments was a move from State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes. Byrd has been wooing the popular Eastern Shoreman in the hopes of landing him on his ticket. Tawes is expected to file soon—without endorsing anyone.

Uncle Don Carney Of Children's Radio Shows Dies At 57

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 15 (AP)—Don Carney, the "Uncle Don" of a thousand children's radio shows, died in his sleep last night at his home. He was 57.

He conducted his final show on radio station WKAT at Miami Beach on Wednesday.

Doctors said he had heart trouble and had been hospitalized several times in the past few years.

Carney was born Aug. 19, 1896, in St. Joseph, Mich., and was educated in Michigan public schools. He entered the radio field in 1924 at station KDKA in Pittsburgh.

From 1926 to 1948 he was "Uncle Don" to millions of moppets who heard his shows originating from WOR and WMCA in New York. He also appeared on NBC and CBS network programs.

Premier Unable To Form Cabinet

ROME, Jan. 15 (AP)—Increasing trouble appears to have arisen today in Premier-designate Amintore Fanfani's efforts to heal the rift in his Christian Democratic party and form a new government.

The 46-year-old former interior minister was expected to report back today to President Luigi Einaudi on whether he would be able to name a Cabinet which would end the 10-day government crisis. But by nightfall he had not done so, indicating the party's squabbling had not been ended.

It was this rift that caused Premier Giuseppe Pella's government to topple Jan. 5.

Polio Vaccine Not Established

BATIMORE, Jan. 15 (AP)—Maryland's Board of Health today expressed fear some publicity about the forthcoming polio vaccinations may lead many to jump to the conclusion an effective vaccine already has been developed.

"It should be clearly understood," the board said, "that as yet there is no scientific proof that this vaccine is effective in preventing polio in humans."

The National Polio Foundation is sponsoring the field test in which thousands of second graders across the country will get polio vaccinations.

The Maryland board has agreed tentatively to assist in the trial in one county. The county has not yet been designated.

In its formal statement the board said "The real nature and purpose of this study should not be obscured by wishful thinking."

The Board joined Dr. Jonas Salk, who developed the vaccine, in declaring "we do not want to allow any distortion of the fact that we still are actively in the stage of clinical investigation."

A WORLD IN TROUBLE

What has happened to this marvelous world of ours in this twentieth century of God's grace? Mankind seems to be passing through a sea of troubles which has no counterpart in human history.

There are wars and rumors of wars among the nations, and many of the nations themselves are split into warring factions, each faction striving for supremacy, and each intolerant of the views, hopes, and rights of others.

The great trouble with the world is that men have forgotten God. They no longer seek spiritual guidance, but follow the vain ways of the modern world. We have become a cynical, materialistic generation.

If this drift toward world tragedy and chaos is ever stopped, the churches of the world must do it. The world's hope—our hope—is in God and His Church. He alone can save mankind from a sorrowful fate.

The Church seeks to turn the hearts of men from the ways of war and fear and hate to the ways of peace and love.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

What has happened to this marvelous world of ours in this twentieth century of God's grace? Mankind seems to be passing through a sea of troubles which has no counterpart in human history.

There are wars and rumors of wars among the nations, and many of the nations themselves are split into warring factions, each faction striving for supremacy, and each intolerant of the views, hopes, and rights of others.

The great trouble with the world is that men have forgotten God. They no longer seek spiritual guidance, but follow the vain ways of the modern world. We have become a cynical, materialistic generation.

If this drift toward world tragedy and chaos is ever stopped, the churches of the world must do it. The world's hope—our hope—is in God and His Church. He alone can save mankind from a sorrowful fate.

The Church seeks to turn the hearts of men from the ways of war and fear and hate to the ways of peace and love.

A WORLD IN TROUBLE

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For the sake of his children's sake. (2) For the sake of his community and nation. (3) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

For Wool—Brannan Plan?

Certain to come in for especially close scrutiny in Congress is the portion of the President's farm message dealing with wool. Aiming to stimulate the domestic production and consumption of wool, President Eisenhower on January 11 proposed that:

Prices of domestically produced wool be permitted to seek their level in the market place.

Direct payments be made to domestic producers . . . to raise the average return per pound to 90 per cent of parity.

Funds to meet wool payments be taken from general revenues within the amount of unobligated tariff receipts from wool.

Similar methods of support were recommended for pulled wool and mohair.

Sen. Sparkman (D., Ala.) asked in debate on the day the message was received how the wool part of the program "fits into the rest of the program as a justification of the application of the Brannan plan to this particular segment of agriculture." Senator Dirksen (R., Ill.) replied, in part, "Probably that commodity requires heroic and rugged treatment, quite more so, perhaps than any other commodity in the whole list."

Sen. Aiken (R., Vt.) pointed out that the Hope-Aiken Act of 1948 had originally authorized the secretary of agriculture to make support "payments" (rather than loans or purchases) "for the purpose of providing a wool program such as we have proposed here today." He recalled that when the Brannan plan in entirety was proposed in the spring of 1949, Congress "voted unanimously against (Brannan's) proposal and kicked it out. Along with it they kicked out authority for making payments for wool."

After the opposition to the Brannan plan in 1949 became apparent, the then secretary of agriculture suggested that Congress permit a "trial run." He indicated that he would pick shorn wool, hogs and potatoes for the test. But the Brannan trial run proposal was equally obnoxious to Congress, which ended by adopting the present plan for eventual application of flexible price supports.

Under present law, the price of shorn wool is supported at 90 per cent of parity until production reaches 300 million pounds in any year. This is the level of domestic production deemed indispensable in the national defense.

President Eisenhower cited the heavy accumulations of wool by the Commodity Credit Corporation—"now nearly 100 million pounds." Of the 1952 production, the CCC bought 100.6 million pounds of shorn (or raw) wool, of which it has been able to dispose of 4.5 million pounds. Some 31 million pounds of the 1953 production are under government loan.

Government purchases in 1952 represented about 40 per cent of the total domestic production of shorn (or to the layman, processed) wool. Imports accounted for more than three-fourths of the domestic consumption in 1952. Import duties vary considerably by grades, and some imported grades bring a price higher than parity.

Some wool is produced in all the states. The heaviest producers are California, Colorado, Missouri, Montana, New Mexico, Ohio, Utah, Wyoming. The farm price late in 1953 was about six cents (10 per cent) below the parity price.

Lesson In Futility

Will the projected Big Four foreign ministers' conference really get under way in Berlin on January 25? At this point the Russians are engaging in their usual sport of obstructionism, making difficulties about details of arrangements for the meeting. They insist on its being held in the Soviet embassy in the Soviet Zone of the city.

Such an arrangement would imply recognition of East Germany's Red regime. It would also give the impression that the United States, Britain and France had been forced to come to them, hat in hand, seeking favors. The Chinese and North Korean Communists played a similar trick on the U.N. command when the Korean armistice talks started in 1951 at Kaesong.

Anything that adds to the legend of Communist invincibility strengthens the Kremlin's efforts to overawe other nations and convince them of the futility of resistance.

Even U. S. agreement to meet in Berlin was a psychological victory for Russia. Berlin is located in the heart of the Soviet Zone of Germany, and the Russians have arrogated to themselves the power to cut off the West's access to the city at intervals.

Not only does Russia occupy the fourth part of the pre-war capital of Germany, but the Reds have surrounded the city with Communist might and cut it off from three parts of Germany itself.

The logical spot for the Big Four conference would be the Allied Control Headquarters, where—until the system broke down—representatives of the same four powers met regularly to disagree over the administration of Berlin. But the headquarters is in the American Zone, so Russia is opposed to meeting there.

Money Making Shakespeare

It is an understatement to say that Will Shakespeare is still the most fabulous playwright of all times. Though his bones were laid to rest hundreds of years ago, his plays still draw millions at the box office.

Just a glance at the current theatrical news is sufficient evidence of that. The movie "Julius Caesar" is so popular that it has been running "Quo Vadis" a fast race for top attendance honors in Sydney, Australia, and London. In Paris, it is playing to jammed houses. It is being tested here in the United States, in Dayton and Nashville, on a regular, continuous showing basis—doing wonderfully.

There are predictions that more of the public will see "Julius Caesar" than has ever witnessed any other Shakespearean film.

Then comes the news that Sir Lawrence Olivier's film, "Hamlet," is going to be brought back for popular viewing, to augment the $3,000,000 grossed since 1948.

"Kiss Me Kate," based on "The Taming of the Shrew," wasn't exactly a loser, either on the stage or in the movies. "Coriolanus" is on the schedule for Broadway and, in a couple of weeks, a full length two-hour production of "Richard III" will be offered television audiences—at a cost going into at least six figures.

And so it goes—Shakespeare still manages to make a lot of money for producers, with nary a red cent in royalties to Will. Who shall deny that Master Shakespeare has been a godsend to the theater and the films? And yet, Shakespeare is still considered high brow and stuffy by some! 'Odds life, what a canard!

Breath Holding

Many children resort to breath holding when they become angry and excited or desire to gain recognition or attention. Some succeed in their aim as it is difficult for the parents to sit back and relax while the child becomes cyanotic (bluish) or goes into a convulsion from lack of oxygen.

Breath holding is more common in the high-strung infant, more so in those who are unable to restrain their emotions. The habit begins early in the second year of life and disappears after the youngster reaches the age of 5. In some instances it represents the end stage of a fit of rage but usually follows something that startles or displeases the child. He begins to cry, takes several deep breaths for 30 to 60 seconds, and then stops breathing. There is dead silence as the child stiffens to hold back the respiratory mechanism. The skin flushes and then turns blue. The more persistent youngster may lose consciousness; this leads to relaxation and a resumption of breathing. Convulsions may occur if the breath is held for more than 30 to 45 seconds. The majority do not go to these extremes and give up after a few moments. With relaxation the color returns and the child is as well as before.

Do these children ever die during these attacks? It is conceivable that death might occur to a youngster who has a bad heart but a normal child survives. In a recent issue of the New England Journal of Medicine, Doctors Vincent J. Derbes and Andrew Kerr Jr., of New Orleans, cite several examples of voluntary death in adults by breath holding. In ancient times, Cato, the bandit leader, was said to have died in this way. He was captured and while up for trial leaned his head on his knees and held his breath until he dropped dead. He might have had a heart attack but it made a better story to say that in this way he cheated death by the sword or noose.

Doctors Derbes and Kerr also describe the case of Col. Townsend who was able to hold his breath and voluntarily suppress the heart beat. No one saw the colonel die but they did witness the "dress rehearsal of his death act on the morning of his demise." For this show he had one physician feel his pulse, another listen to the heart, and a third hold a looking glass to his mouth. After giving the signal, the pulse faded away, the motions of the heart disappeared, and there was no evidence of vapor on the mirror. According to the ancient report, he continued for one-half hour before regaining consciousness.

There also are several references to slaves committing suicide by holding the breath. This was said to be a common occurrence on slave ships. Plantation owners were warned to take precautions during the whipping of slaves to prevent them from sucking their tongue into the pharynx and dying of suffocation.

NEEDLESS INVALIDISM

J. R. writes: Does a diabetic have to give up all exercises and spend most of the time resting?

REPLY: No. Exercise is beneficial because it helps burn up the unused sugar. Diabetes is no alibi for laziness.

FORCEFUL CRAMP

E. T. writes: Could leg cramps cause a blood vessel to break?

REPLY: Now and then a severe leg cramp is followed by a black-and-blue spot over the calf, indicating hemorrhage into a muscle.

STANDING WEAKNESS

Mrs. Y. writes: What makes a woman feel weak when she stops to talk with someone on the street or in the grocery store?

REPLY: While carrying a large sack of groceries? Standing too long in one position makes some persons feel weak or faint because of the effect of gravity on the circulating fluids of the body. In non-scientific language, "The blood tends to leave the head and settle in the feet."

GREASY DANDRUFF

H. J. writes: Will X-ray treatments cure seborrheic dermatitis of the scalp?

REPLY: Yes, but radiation is used as a last resort. Simpler treatments are available.

DROPPED LASHES

E. D. writes: What causes the eyelashes to fall out?

REPLY: Eyelashes are subjected to the same trials and tribulations as hair elsewhere on the body. Inflammation of the lids (blepharitis) is one of the common causes. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on blepharitis.

NORMAL REACTION

D. N. writes: Is it natural for the heart to beat faster after climbing a flight of stairs?

REPLY: Yes. During exercise the muscles need more blood and, in order to furnish the extra supply, the heart works harder.

HORMONES AND CANCER

REPLY: No. Hormonal injections do not cause cancer but exaggerate it if it exists.

Gen. Bradley Urged To Run For Senate; Bradley Once Advised Ike To Stay Out Of Politics; Eisenhower Modifies His Stand Re Citizenship For Reds

WASHINGTON — Gen. Omar Bradley, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and one of the great military men of modern times, has been approached by California admirers to run for the U. S. Senate, as a Democrat.

His reactions to the Senate approach are extremely interesting. In the first place, Bradley is worried about money—which is understandable, since he has lived on a meagre military salary all his life, and if he goes back on the federal payroll as a senator he would forfeit his retired Army pension.

But more important, Uncle Omar is worried about the principle of military men mixing in politics. He regards this principle as most important.

The trend started by MacArthur and Eisenhower is dangerous and should not be continued, he told California friends, for the military profession and politics don't mix.

A general, for instance, must be trained to insist upon military needs entirely apart from any political considerations. The politician, on the other hand, must be willing to compromise. As long as military men don't have political ambitions, Bradley explained, they will perform their jobs fearlessly and without compromise.

Here And Now

Lying

In old Chautauqua days one night two noted humorists were on the platform as entertainers—Bill Nye and Eli Perkins.

In introducing Perkins, Nye said: "Ladies and Gentlemen! we have the pleasure of listening to a lecture on 'Lies and Liars' by one (the sentence was broken by applause and then completed:) of the most distinguished lecturers on the American lyceum platform—Eli Perkins."

Mr. Perkins was equal to the occasion. He began: "I am not as big a liar as Bill Nye (applause) would have you think."

The psalmist said "I said in my haste, all men are liars." Some wag has remarked that, if he had lived in our day he might have said it at his leisure.

Be that as it may, don't call a man a liar unless you are prepared to contest the claim. Lies are a common form of indoor, as well as outdoor, sport.

Many Varieties

There are many varieties; some are innocent, like the "tall-story" which nobody is expected to believe. Some are malicious, and meant to deceive.

Various opinions are held about lying, some maintaining that they are always and everywhere condemnable, others excusing them under certain circumstances. All recognize that there are degrees of culpability.

There are white lies and black, fibs and whoppers, half-truths and lies out of whole cloth—all indicating that the line between a truth and an untruth is dimly drawn, and a lie is excusable if it serves a useful purpose and you can get away with it.

White lies are easily excusable, such as flattering people about their looks, having the maid tell the caller you are not "at home" when you are; preachers overstating the size of their congregations; parents understating the ages of their children to obtain a free ride on the train.

Lying, like the poor, we have with us always. When Shakespeare wants to tell how easy a thing is, he says "it's as easy as lying."

out compromise. But once a political career lurks in the mind of a general, his military actions are bound to be influenced by politics.

Therefore, concluded Bradley, military men must stay out of the political arena.

It so happens that Uncle Omar gave exactly the same advice to his close friend, Ike Eisenhower, back in 1948, and this was one reason Ike refused to run for President at that time.

Bradley is intrigued at the idea of being a senator, however, and feels that he might make some contribution. But the negative factors outweigh the positive, at least for the moment.

Ike Modifies Red Stand

President Eisenhower had a frank chat on loyalty probes with a non-yessing Democratic congressman the other day in which he conceded that some people may have misunderstood his recent statement that disloyal Americans be deprived of citizenship.

Ike told Congressman Harley Staggers of West Virginia that he referred (in his State of the Union message) to those who committed treasonable acts to undermine the government. He did not mean former Communists who had been duped into joining the Communist party, but later renounced communism.

"I do not have the power, as President, to give citizenship to anyone, but I do have the right to restore citizenship to a felon who has paid the penalty for his crime," Eisenhower said. "If a convicted felon can come back and be a free man in a free world, then certainly those who espoused communism, but later repudiated it, should not be stigmatized by their fellow citizens for the rest of their lives. That's not the American way."

"I'm glad to hear you clear that up, Mr. President," said the West Virginia Democrat, "because I was a little confused myself by what you said in the State of the Union message." Staggers then read to the President an editorial in the Wall Street Journal, stating in effect that the newspaper hoped Eisenhower didn't mean what its editors thought he implied.

Ike repeated his statement quoted above, then added: "I also did not mean to imply any partisanship in what I said."

"Listen, Mr. President," replied Staggers, "this question is bigger than the Congress, the administration, or any one man. It's the most important problem that the nation faces today, and it will take our best brains to solve it. It is far more important than the job the Hoover Commission is doing to reorganize the government."

"If the current investigations of disloyalty by various committees of Congress, competing for publicity, are allowed to continue, in two or three years there will be so much confusion in the public mind that political opportunists may be trying to outlaw the Democratic or the Republican party as un-American."

"I think you're right," replied the President, adding that he was going to give serious attention to a bill Staggers has introduced, providing for a thorough probe of subversive influences by a 12-man commission of outstanding citizens, selected by the president, the vice president and the speaker of the House.

Navy Confesses

Adm. Jim Holloway, the Navy's personnel chief, is in the Pentagon doghouse for sending a written statement to the House Armed Services Committee without clearing it. Trouble was that he gave away Annapolis secrets.

The congressmen had requested Holloway's views on an Air Force academy, and the admiral wrote a statement in favor of it. But buried deep in the statement was a confession that the Navy had been using high-pressure tactics on Annapolis midshipmen to keep them from joining its chief rival—the Air Force.

When Deputy Secretary of Defense saw this paragraph, he ordered it struck out. He was told, however, that it was too late. The statement had already been sent to Capitol Hill.

Kyes hit the ceiling, ordered that the paragraph be skipped over when the statement was read into the record. He hoped that Congress and newspapermen would thereby overlook it. Meanwhile, Holloway was called on the carpet by his fellow admirals.

"What's wrong with the story?" asked Holloway. "After all, it's true. We work over the midshipmen to keep them from signing up in the Air Force. We don't want them to join the Air Force. We teach them some things we don't want them to use against us later."

The truth, indicated his fellow admirals, doesn't always pay.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Whether one likes it or not, the most significant fact about the present session of Congress is that it is governed not by a two-party but by a "four-party system."

Only by accepting that piece of realism can one understand what is going to happen to the multifarious recommendations in President Eisenhower's several messages.

For the last few weeks now the country has been told in various news dispatches that the Republicans have 47 members of the Senate and the Democrats have 48 and that one former Republican now votes "independent." An impression is created that the two political parties are about even up and also that inside the Republican party there is a big split. Little has been said about the fact that five Democrats promised the late Senator Taft, if any votes were needed by the Republicans to retain control of the Senate organization, those five would absent themselves and let the Republican setup prevail. That group feels the same today.

Four Separate Blocs

The truth is there are about 15 Democrats in the Senate who cannot be counted upon to hew to the party line on legislation and there are about five constant Republican dissenters. But even these figures are meaningless. The important question is whether there is a majority for each of the President's proposals.

Any survey made today must necessarily concede that the major part of the President's program will be adopted by Congress in some form and that, if the remainder comes to a vote, it will also be approved with the changes that are required in order to attain majority support.

The names "Republican" and "Democrat" in Congress are meaningless except for political fireworks and campaign purposes or for the procedural side of the two houses of Congress. So far as law-making is concerned, there are four separate blocs or parties and the labels by which they may be described are by no means conceded to be accurate.

There is in the Congress a small conservative group—not over 10 per cent. The real majority is a "conservative liberal" group as differentiated from a "radical liberal" group.

The "conservative liberals" comprise at least 15 to 20 Democrats and more than 40 Republicans. The "radical liberals" are to be found in the Democratic party only, though it might be that one or two Republicans would join that bloc on certain issues. The "radical liberals" cannot command 20 votes out of the 96 on any really extreme issue.

The President And The Bricker Amendment

Professor Edward S. Corwin, learned student of government and now organizer of a campaign against the Bricker Amendment, wrote a book some years ago entitled "The President—Office and Powers." It is a scholarly contribution to the subject.

So when I received a circular letter in opposition to the Bricker Amendment signed by Professor Corwin, I seized upon his book as an index to what the professor thinks on the subject. As regards the constitutional stipulations concerning the foreign policies and relations of the United States, Professor Corwin wrote:

"... What the Constitution does, and all that it does, is to confer upon the president certain powers capable of affecting our foreign relations, and certain other powers of the same general nature upon the Senate, and still other such powers upon Congress; but which of these organs shall have the decisive and final voice in determining the course of the American nation is left for events to resolve."

"All of which amounts to saying that the Constitution, considered only for its affirmative grants of powers which are capable of affecting the issue, is an invitation to struggle for the privilege of directing American foreign policy. . . ."

What the Bricker Amendment seeks to do is to eliminate this particular struggle, which often becomes unseemly, by clarifying the authority of Congress and the authority of the President. Such a clarification is necessary after the amazing and tragic performances of our presidents at the Tehran, Cairo, Yalta and Potsdam conferences which brought upon us the state of permanent war.

Professor Corwin, anticipating one phase of the Bricker Amendment by many years, wrote:

"Of course, when it comes to legislation which would be capable of tying his (the president's) hands because of his constitutional obligation in respect to law enforcement, a president has usually an effective weapon of defense for his policies in his veto power. The trouble is that an act which was put on the statute books with the approval of a predecessor, or even with his own approval, may later turn out to be seriously crippling. Thus it was that President Wilson found it necessary early in 1914, when he was being subjected to strong pressure from Great Britain on account of his Mexican policy, to go before Congress and urge repeal of the Panama Tolls Act of 1911:

"I ask this of you in support of the foreign policy of the administration. I shall not know how to deal with other matters of even greater delicacy and nearer consequence if you do not grant it to me in ungrudging measure."

"No more striking acknowledgment has ever been made by a president of the actual power of Congress in the foreign-relations field."

It is now clear that while Woodrow Wilson ran in 1916 on the slogan, "He Kept Us Out of War," he was already in 1914 laying the foundation for getting us into war in the event that Great Britain was in danger of defeat. Congress was never informed of Woodrow Wilson's covert negotiations nor of the efforts of Walter Hines Page, our ambassador to the Court of St. James, to support one side against the other in a war in which the Americans had no cause. The American people actually believed that Woodrow Wilson was keeping this nation out of war.

Congress did, on March 4, 1913, pass a rider to the Appropriations Act forbidding the president to "extend or accept any invitation to participate in any international congress, conference, or like event without specific authority to do so."

To this caveat, Professor Corwin remarks sagely: "Shades of Cairo, Tehran, Yalta, Potsdam! . . ."

It would seem that one who has written page after page about the confusion that has arisen in our history because the powers of the president and of Congress in foreign relations have not been precisely defined, would favor a measure that does define those authorities precisely. Were his position that the authority over foreign relations be exclusively the President's, it would be preferable to the present confusion. But then we should have to reorganize the American government on a Fascistic basis, making of our President a dictator, even in domestic affairs, as foreign relations and domestic affairs are today inseparable.

Is there then no alternative to confusion or fascism? The Bricker Amendment offers such an alternative within the tradition of the American people.

Breath Holding

Many children resort to breath holding when they become angry and excited or desire to gain recognition or attention. Some succeed in their aim as it is difficult for the parents to sit back and relax while the child becomes cyanotic (bluish) or goes into a convulsion from lack of oxygen.

Breath holding is more common in the high-strung infant, more so in those who are unable to restrain their emotions. The habit begins early in the second year of life and disappears after the youngster reaches the age of 5. In some instances it represents the end stage of a fit of rage but usually follows something that startles or displeases the child. He begins to cry, takes several deep breaths for 30 to 60 seconds, and then stops breathing. There is dead silence as the child stiffens to hold back the respiratory mechanism. The skin flushes and then turns blue. The more persistent youngster may lose consciousness; this leads to relaxation and a resumption of breathing. Convulsions may occur if the breath is held for more than 30 to 45 seconds. The majority do not go to these extremes and give up after a few moments. With relaxation the color returns and the child is as well as before.

Do these children ever die during these attacks? It is conceivable that death might occur to a youngster who has a bad heart but a normal child survives. In a recent issue of the New England Journal of Medicine, Doctors Vincent J. Derbes and Andrew Kerr Jr., of New Orleans, cite several examples of voluntary death in adults by breath holding. In ancient times, Cato, the bandit leader, was said to have died in this way. He was captured and while up for trial leaned his head on his knees and held his breath until he dropped dead. He might have had a heart attack but it made a better story to say that in this way he cheated death by the sword or noose.

Doctors Derbes and Kerr also describe the case of Col. Townsend who was able to hold his breath and voluntarily suppress the heart beat. No one saw the colonel die but they did witness the "dress rehearsal" of his death act on the morning of his demise. For this show he had one physician feel his pulse, another listen to the heart, and a third hold a looking glass to his mouth. After giving the signal, the pulse faded away, the motions of the heart disappeared, and there was no evidence of vapor on the mirror. According to the ancient report, he continued for one-half hour before regaining consciousness.

There also are several references to slaves committing suicide by holding the breath. This was said to be a common occurrence on slave ships. Plantation owners were warned to take precautions during the whipping of slaves to prevent them from sucking their tongue into the pharynx and dying of suffocation.

NEEDLESS INVALIDISM

J. R. writes: Does a diabetic have to give up all exercises and spend most of the time resting?

REPLY: No. Exercise is beneficial because it helps burn up the unused sugar. Diabetes is no alibi for laziness.

FORCEFUL CRAMP

E. T. writes: Could leg cramps cause a blood vessel to break?

REPLY: Now and then a severe leg cramp is followed by a black-and-blue spot over the calf, indicating hemorrhage into a muscle.

STANDING WEAKNESS

Mrs. Y. writes: What makes a woman feel weak when she stops to talk with someone on the street or in the grocery store?

REPLY: While carrying a large sack of groceries? Standing too long in one position makes some persons feel weak or faint because of the effect of gravity on the circulating fluids of the body. In non-scientific language, "The blood tends to leave the head and settle in the feet."

GREASY DANDRUFF
H. J. writes: Will X-ray treatments cure seborrheic dermatitis of the scalp?

REPLY: Yes, but radiation is used as a last resort. Simpler treatments are available.

DROPPED LASHES
E. D. writes: What causes the eyelashes to fall out?

REPLY: Eyelashes are subjected to the same trials and tribulations as hair elsewhere on the body. Inflammation of the lids (blepharitis) is one of the common causes. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on blepharitis.

NORMAL REACTION
D. N. writes: Is it natural for the heart to beat faster after climbing a flight of stairs?

REPLY: Yes. During exercise the muscles need more blood and, in order to furnish the extra supply, the heart works harder.

HORMONES AND CANCER
C. P. writes: Can taking estrogen "shots" for the menopause cause cancer of the breast?

REPLY: No. Hormonal injections do not cause cancer but exaggerate it if it exists.

Gen. Bradley Urged To Run For Senate; Bradley Once Advised Ike To Stay Out Of Politics; Eisenhower Modifies His Stand Re Citizenship For Reds

WASHINGTON — Gen. Omar Bradley, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and one of the great military men of modern times, has been approached by California admirers to run for the U. S. Senate, as a Democrat.

His reactions to the Senate approach are extremely interesting. In the first place, Bradley is worried about money—which is understandable, since he has lived on a meagre military salary all his life, and if he goes back on the federal payroll as a senator he would forfeit his retired Army pension.

But more important, Uncle Omar is worried about the principle of military men mixing in politics. He regards this principle as most important.

The trend started by MacArthur and Eisenhower is dangerous and should not be continued, he told California friends, for the military profession and politics don't mix.

A general, for instance, must be trained to insist upon military needs entirely apart from any political considerations. The politician, on the other hand, must be willing to compromise. As long as military men don't have political ambitions, Bradley explained, they will perform their jobs fearlessly and without compromise.

But once a political career lurks in the mind of a general, his military actions are bound to be influenced by politics.

Therefore, concluded Bradley, military men must stay out of the political arena.

It so happens that Uncle Omar gave exactly the same advice to his close friend, Ike Eisenhower, back in 1948, and this was one reason Ike refused to run for President at that time.

Bradley is intrigued at the idea of being a senator, however, and feels that he might make some contribution. But the negative factors outweigh the positive, at least for the moment.

Ike Modifies Red Stand
President Eisenhower had a frank chat on loyalty probes with a non-yessing Democratic congressman the other day in which Ike conceded that some people may have misunderstood his recent statement that disloyal Americans be deprived of citizenship.

Ike told Congressman Harley Staggers of West Virginia that he referred (in his State of the Union message) to those who committed treasonable acts to undermine the government. He did not mean former Communists who had been duped into joining the Communist party, but later renounced communism.

"I do not have the power, as President, to give citizenship to anyone, but I do have the right to restore citizenship to a felon who has paid the penalty for his crime," Eisenhower said. "If a convicted felon can come back and be a free man in a free world, then certainly those who espoused communism, but later repudiated it, should not be stigmatized by their fellow citizens for the rest of their lives."

"I'm glad to hear you clear that up, Mr. President," said the West Virginia Democrat. "Because I was a little confused myself by what you said in the State of the Union message." Staggers then read to the President an editorial in the Wall Street Journal, stating in effect that the newspaper hoped Eisenhower didn't mean what its editors thought he implied.

Ike repeated his statement quoted above, then added: "I also did not mean to imply any partisanship in what I said."

"Listen, Mr. President," replied Staggers, "this question is bigger than the Congress, the administration, or any one man. It's the most important problem that the nation faces today, and it will take our best brains to solve it. It is far more important than the job the Hoover Commission is doing to reorganize the government."

"If the current investigations of disloyalty by various committees of Congress, competing for publicity, are allowed to continue, in two or three years there will be so much confusion in the public mind that political opportunists may be trying to outlaw the Democratic or the Republican party as un-American."

"I think you're right," replied the President, adding that he was going to give serious attention to a bill Staggers has introduced, providing for a thorough probe of subversive influences by a 12-man commission of outstanding citizens, selected by the president, the vice president and the speaker of the House.

All of which amounts to saying that the Constitution, considered only for its affirmative grants of powers which are capable of affecting the issue, is an invitation to struggle for the privilege of directing American foreign policy. . .

What the Bricker Amendment seeks to do is to eliminate this particular struggle, which often becomes unseemly, by clarifying the authority of Congress and the authority of the President. Such a clarification is necessary after the amazing and tragic performances of our presidents at the Tehran, Cairo, Yalta and Potsdam conferences which brought upon us the state of permanent war.

Professor Corwin, anticipating one phase of the Bricker Amendment by many years, wrote: "Of course, when it comes to legislation which would be capable of tying his (the president's) hands because of his constitutional obligation in respect to law enforcement, a president has usually an effective weapon of defense for his policies in his veto power. The trouble is that an act which was put on the statute books with the approval of a predecessor, or even with his own approval, may later turn out to be seriously crippling. Thus it was that President Wilson found it necessary early in 1914, when he was being subjected to strong pressure from Great Britain

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Whether one likes it or not, the most significant fact about the present session of Congress is that it is governed not by a two-party but by a "four-party system."

Only by "accepting that piece of realism can one understand what is going to happen to the multifarious recommendations in President Eisenhower's several messages.

For the last few weeks now the country has been told in various news dispatches that the Republicans have 47 members of the Senate and the Democrats have 48 and that one former Republican now votes "independent." An impression is created that the two political parties are about even up and also that inside the Republican party there is a big split. Little has been said about the fact that five Democrats promised the late Senator Taft, if any votes were needed by the Republicans to retain control of the Senate organization, those five would absent themselves and let the Republican setup prevail. That group feels the same today.

Four Separate Blocs

The truth is there are about 15 Democrats in the Senate who cannot be counted upon to hew to the party line on legislation and there are about five constant Republican dissenters. But even these figures are meaningless. The important question is whether there is a majority for each of the President's proposals.

Any survey made today must necessarily concede that the major part of the President's program will be adopted by Congress in some form and that, if the remainder comes to a vote, it will also be approved with the changes that are required in order to attain majority support.

The names "Republican" and "Democrat" in Congress are meaningless except for political fireworks and campaign purposes or for the procedural side of the two houses of Congress. So far as law-making is concerned, there are four separate blocs or parties and the labels by which they may be described are by no means conceded to be accurate.

There is in the Congress a small conservative group—not over 10 per cent. The real majority is a "conservative liberal" group as differentiated from a "radical liberal" group.

The "conservative liberals" comprise at least 15 to 20 Democrats and more than 40 Republicans. The "radical liberals" are to be found in the Democratic party only, though it might be that one or two Republicans would join that bloc on certain issues. The "radical liberals" cannot command 20 votes out of the 96 on any really extreme issue.

That's why Mr. Eisenhower will get a working majority, which will be drawn from the "conservative liberals" on the Democratic side and their brethren of similar view on the Republican side. No single majority on one issue will resemble the line-up on another issue. This is not new—not a single major piece of legislation has been adopted by Congress in nearly 15 years in which there has been a strict party vote on both sides. That's the "four-party" system.

These Days

The President And The Bricker Amendment

Professor Edward S. Corwin, learned student of government and now organizer of a campaign against the Bricker Amendment, wrote a book some years ago entitled "The President—Office and Powers." It is a scholarly contribution to the subject.

So when I received a circular letter in opposition to the Bricker Amendment signed by Professor Corwin, I seized upon his book as an index to what the professor thinks on the subject. As regards the constitutional stipulations concerning the foreign policies and relations of the United States, Professor Corwin wrote:

"... What the Constitution does, and all that it does, is to confer upon the president certain powers capable of affecting our foreign relations, and certain other powers of the same general nature upon the Senate, and still other such powers upon Congress; but which of these organs shall have the decisive and final voice in determining the course of the American nation is left for events to resolve."

All of which amounts to saying that the Constitution, considered only for its affirmative grants of powers which are capable of affecting the issue, is an invitation to struggle for the privilege of directing American foreign policy. . .

What the Bricker Amendment seeks to do is to eliminate this particular struggle, which often becomes unseemly, by clarifying the authority of Congress and the authority of the President. Such a clarification is necessary after the amazing and tragic performances of our presidents at the Tehran, Cairo, Yalta and Potsdam conferences which brought upon us the state of permanent war.

Professor Corwin, anticipating one phase of the Bricker Amendment by many years, wrote:

"Of course, when it comes to legislation which would be capable of tying his (the president's) hands because of his constitutional obligation in respect to law enforcement, a president has usually an effective weapon of defense for his policies in his veto power. The trouble is that an act which was put on the statute books with the approval of a predecessor, or even with his own approval, may later turn out to be seriously crippling. Thus it was that President Wilson found it necessary early in 1914, when he was being subjected to strong pressure from Great Britain

on account of his Mexican policy, to go before Congress and urge repeal of the Panama Tolls Act of 1911:

"I ask this of you in support of the foreign policy of the administration. I shall not know how to deal with other matters of even greater delicacy and nearer consequence if you do not grant it to me in ungrudging measure."

"No more striking acknowledgment has ever been made by a president of the actual power of Congress in the foreign-relations field."

It is now clear that while Woodrow Wilson ran in 1916 on the slogan, "He Kept Us Out of War," he was already in 1914 laying the foundation for getting us into war in the event that Great Britain was in danger of defeat. Congress was never informed of Woodrow Wilson's covert negotiations nor of the efforts of Walter Hines Page, our ambassador to the Court of St. James, to support one side against the other in a war in which the Americans had no cause. The American people actually believed that Woodrow Wilson was keeping this nation out of war.

Congress did, on March 4, 1913, pass a rider to the Appropriations Act forbidding the president to "extend or accept any invitation to participate in any international congress, conference, or like event without specific authorization to do so."

To this caveat, Professor Corwin remarks sagely: "Shades of Cairo, Teheran, Yalta, Potsdam! . . ."

It would seem that one who has written page after page about the confusion that has arisen in our history because the powers of the president and of Congress in foreign relations have not been precisely defined, would favor a measure that does define those authorities precisely. Were his position that the authority over foreign relations be exclusively the President's, it would be preferable to the present confusion. But then we should have to reorganize the American government on a Fascistic basis, making of our President a dictator, even in domestic affairs, as foreign relations and domestic affairs are today inseparable.

Is there then no alternative to confusion or fascism? The Bricker Amendment offers such an alternative within the tradition of the American people.

Keeping Up With Hollywood by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15 (INS) — Say au revoir. She has gone back to New York.

She told me while she was here she was called from New York to go on George Kaufman's TV panel show on the 19th.

"I don't want to miss that," she said, "because my son, Tommy, is in the play on the panel, and, naturally, I want to be on with him."

Glenda said her husband, Dr. Henry Ross, had telephoned her not to stay in California too long. "But that's difficult to do," Glenda laughed, "because I have so many friends here, and I loved making 'Susan Slept Here' with Harriet."

Chatter in Hollywood:

The girl in Gene Nelson's life these days is Dottie Levi, who is in Dr. A. G. Menzies' office. She's as pretty as Marilyn Monroe and a gay and vivacious young lady.

Stanley Kramer flies out tomorrow night to Washington to show Navy heads "Caine Mutiny." After all, it was the Navy who gave him permission to film the picture and he must get their approval. There's talk that the President, himself, may look at "Mutiny" which, of course, will be released too late for Academy consideration this time.

I hope I can see it soon because I hear Fred MacMurray, Van Johnson and all the rest do an outstanding job.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Must say Terry Moore is very frank. She writes me a note and in a P. S. says, "I'm majoring in psychology but so far it hasn't helped." Well, keep trying, Terry. Concentrate more on your acting — you're a good actress, much too good to keep trading in on the ermine thing suit.

The Danny Thomases celebrated their 18th wedding anniversary today — the first time in 12 years Danny's wife hasn't had to fly to some distant spot to be with him.

Sy Bartlett writes that he is returning to Hollywood April 1, and hopes to bring Greg Peck with him. Guess Greg and the children hope so, too.

Virginia Warren, attractive eldest daughter of Chief Justice Warren, has been out several nights with Conrad Hilton. They were last seen at the Mocambo to hear Eartha Kitt.

Groucho Marx's son, Arthur, has sold a biography of his father's life to Simon and Schuster. They'll publish it serially in a current magazine next summer. Arthur Treats Groucho's life from a serious viewpoint, and calls the book, "Groucho Sent Me."

Rita Hayworth is moving to Miami to live while Dick Haymes appears at the Clover Club there.

The Ronald Colmans are talking about taking a house in Europe and spending the summer there with their daughter, Juliet.

That's all today. See you Monday.

Railway Cites Profit Record

Western Maryland Railway rounded out the most profitable year in its history during 1953, according to estimates made by the management.

Both operating revenues and net income after taxes and charges were the largest for any year in the company's experience.

Net income for 1953 was tentatively figured at approximately $7,684,000, equivalent to $48.94 a share on the 177,420 shares of 7 per cent cumulative first preferred stock, which is in arrears as to dividends.

For the preceding year net income was $5,750,070 or $32.41 a share on the first preferred stock.

The previous best year in net income was 1948 when the figure was $6,104,077 or $34.40 a share on the senior stock.

Gross operating revenues for 1953 were estimated at $50,658,000, as compared with $47,559,386 in 1952 and a previous peak of $47,724,914 marked up in 1951.

Coal freight produced an estimated revenue of $18,524,000 last year, an increase of $1,521,000 over 1952. Other freight receipts of $29,386,000 were up $1,492,000 over a year earlier.

A slowing down of general business, especially in steel, brought a sharp drop in both gross and net for the final month of last year.

Net income for December was estimated at approximately $230,000 as compared with $612,986 for the corresponding month of 1952.

The operating revenues at $3,806,000 as against $4,437,000 a year earlier.

Nor do I. Self-confidence is the basis of poise. Without it, one cannot sit quietly, stand gracefully with suppleness, control or walk with smooth, fluid grace — all accomplishments that a model must be able to exhibit whenever she accepts an assignment. They must be just as natural to the model as breathing.

If you let your shoulders slump when you stand, or walk in a stooping position, your head is sure to thrust forward, your chest flatten and your abdomen protrude. The impression you give is one of abject defeat. The person who slumps physically is sure to be thought of as in a mental slump as well.

Keeping Up With Hollywood by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15 (INS) — If a beauty vote were taken in our town, Cyd Charisse would come very near to winning it. She's just as pretty as Ava Gardner, in fact they look very much alike, and besides there's a great sweetness about her.

Cyd has just been chosen to co-star with Gene Kelly in "Music to My Ears," a story of American music which Arthur Freed is having prepared for the screen. Gene will do the choreography.

This will be the fourth picture Gene and Cyd have made together. They were in "Singin' in the Rain," "Bandwagon," "Brigadoon," and now "Music to My Ears."

Music typical of New Orleans, New York, Chicago and Seattle will all be in the picture.

George Stevens tells me that he leaves for New York to ask Edna Ferber to do the final job of revisions on "Giant," her novel which he and Henry Ginsberg start at Warner Brothers in March.

Said George, "Miss Ferber is such a brilliant woman, and, after all, it is her story and I want her to make suggestions or any changes."

He has not selected any members of the cast yet. He had talked to Jennifer Jones before she knew she was going to have a baby. Audrey Hepburn was really his first choice, and now Olivia De Havilland is another prospect.

Glenda Farrell, who finished in "Susan Slept Here," telephoned to say au revoir. She has gone back to New York.

She told me while she was here she was called from New York to go on George Kaufman's TV panel show on the 19th.

"I don't want to miss that," she said, "because my son, Tommy, is in the play on the panel, and, naturally, I want to be on with him."

Glenda said her husband, Dr. Henry Ross, had telephoned her not to stay in California too long. "But that's difficult to do," Glenda laughed, "because I have so many friends here, and I loved making 'Susan Slept Here' with Harriet."

Chatter in Hollywood: The girl in Gene Nelson's life these days is Dottie Levi, who is in Dr. A. G. Menzies office. She's as pretty as Marilyn Monroe and a gay and vivacious young lady.

Stanley Kramer flies out tomorrow night to Washington to show Navy heads "Caine Mutiny." After all, it was the Navy who gave him permission to film the picture and he must get their approval.

There's talk that the President, himself, may look at "Mutiny" which, of course, will be released too late for Academy consideration this time.

I hope I can see it soon because I hear Fred MacMurray, Van Johnson and all the rest do an outstanding job.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Must say Terry Moore is very frank. She writes me a note and in a P. S. says, "I'm majoring in psychology but so far it hasn't helped." Well, keep trying, Terry. Concentrate more on your acting—you're a good actress, much too good to keep trading in on the ermine thing suit.

The Danny Thomases celebrated their 18th wedding anniversary today—the first time in 12 years Danny's wife hasn't had to fly to some distant spot to be with him.

Sy Bartlett writes that he is returning to Hollywood April 1, and hopes to bring Greg Peck with him. Guess Greta and the children hope so, too.

Virginia Warren, attractive eldest daughter of Chief Justice Warren, has been out several nights with Conrad Hilton. They were last seen at the Mocambo to hear Eartha Kitt.

Groucho Marx's son, Arthur, has sold a biography of his father's life to Simon and Schuster. They'll publish it serially in a current magazine next summer. Arthur Treats Groucho's life from a serious viewpoint, and calls the book, "Groucho Sent Me."

Rita Hayworth is moving to Miami to live while Dick Haymes appears at the Cleveland Club there. The Ronald Colmans are talking about taking a house in Europe and spending the summer there with their daughter, Juliet.

That's all today. See you Monday. (Copyright 1954 by INS).

Railway Cites Profit Record

Western Maryland Railway rounded out the most profitable year in its history during 1953, according to estimates made by the management.

Both operating revenues and net income after taxes and charges were the largest for any year in the company's history.

Net income for 1953 was tentatively figured at approximately $7,684,000, equivalent to $48.94 a share on the 177,420 shares of 7 per cent cumulative first preferred stock, which is in arrears as to dividends.

For the preceding year net income was $5,750,070 or $32.41 a share on the first preferred stock.

The previous best year in net income was 1948 when the figure was $6,104,077 or $34.40 a share on the senior stock.

Gross operating revenues for 1953 were estimated at $50,658,000, as compared with $47,559,386 in 1952 and a previous peak of $47,724,914 marked up in 1951.

Coal freight produced an estimated revenue of $18,524,000 last year, an increase of $1,521,000 over 1952. Other freight receipts of $29,386,000 were up $1,492,000 over a year earlier.

A slowing down of general business, especially in steel, brought a sharp drop in both gross and net for the final month of last year.

Net income for December was estimated at approximately $230,000 as compared with $612,986 for the corresponding month of 1952. The operating revenues at $3,806,000 as against $4,437,000 a year earlier.

Concrete Is Poured During Snow Storm

Despite snow and 20-degree temperatures the final pour of concrete was made Thursday on the center pier of the Cumberland-Ridgeley dam.

This completes over half of the structure and the coffer dam will be moved to the West Virginia side of the stream.

It has not been too long ago that the practice of pouring concrete in freezing weather was unheard of. But the E. J. Albrecht Company has combined ingenuity and engineering skill to keep up continuous pouring all this fall and winter.

The sand, gravel and cement is heated at Corriganville, transported to the mixing plant at Riverside Park. Here it is mixed with heated water. When it is in the forms, hot air heaters blow continuously for 24 hours over it while it is covered with tarpaulin.

Maps Of City Traffic Plans Displayed In Mayor's Office

The City Engineering Department has prepared in the Mayor's office in City Hall a graphic display of State Roads Commission plans for Cumberland.

In several media are shown the exact location of the cross-town route and the bridge involved in its construction.

One map shows a profile, or side view of the route as it enters the city from Lindernville and crosses downtown Cumberland and the approach to the new Cumberland-Ridgeley bridge.

This view shows how motorists can leave the bridge at Centre and Mechanic streets in the Salem street vicinity.

Shows Industrial Belt

The maps also show the industrial belt that enters the city from the Evitts Creek section and follows the B&O Railroad up to Baltimore Street.

Charles R. Nuzum, city engineer, and his staff clearly exhibit how the industrial belt and cross-town thoroughfare tie into each other in connecting all the major routes of the city.

One map displays the results of the SRC traffic survey conducted in 1950. At each major point in the city Nuzum has shown by various colored graphs with numbers the traffic flow in 1950 and the anticipated flow in 1970.

Parkway Terminal

Still another map shows the major traffic proposals as compiled in a SRC survey.

The terminal of the C&O Canal Parkway is also placed in the overall city map, showing how it will tie in with the industrial belt route.

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce has appointed a nine-man committee headed by Miles G. Thompson Sr., to study the SRC cross-town plan and also the alternate route proposed by a local group.

Estimates Not Ready

The SRC has not finished its estimate on the cost of the alternate cross-town route, Nuzum said. When these figures are received, the alternate plan will be inscribed on the maps.

The only surviving explorer present at the opening of the King Tut-khamen's tomb, the Count has dug up more mummies, acquired a larger private mummy collection, and explored more ancient cities and civilizations than any other living man. He was first to discover King Solomon's mines, first to excavate the lost kingdom of Sheba and Cleopatra's lost emerald mines and first to link the Mayas of Central America scientifically with the ancient Libyans.

Five Garrett Firms Cited In Liquor Counts

Three Clubs And Two Hotels Are Accused

OAKLAND — Charges of violations of the Garrett County liquor laws have been placed against five business places in that county. Sheriff Paul W. Fisher said warrants have been placed against the following clubs and hotels:

Manhattan Hotel, Moose Lodge 786; and Proctor Kildow Post 71, American Legion, all of Oakland; VFW Post 8049, Friendsville, and the Arlington Hotel, Grantsville.

The arrests were made Tuesday and Wednesday by Sheriff Fisher and Deputy Edward J. Frantz. The owners or trustees of each establishment were charged with having liquor in their possession for the purpose of sale on certain days within the past month.

Assisting the county authorities in making the arrests were two unidentified state policemen who reportedly had been in the county in civilian apparel, and who reportedly made the purchases which resulted in the arrests.

The clubs and hotels are only licensed to sell beer, authorities stated.

State's Attorney W. Dwight Stover of Garrett County said preliminary hearings for the owners and trustees have been tentatively set for Tuesday morning before Magistrate W. O. Bitzer. The hearings can take place that day, he continued, or else a jury trial before the March term of court may be requested.

State's Attorney Stover said $1,000 bonds have been posted by all who were served warrants.

At the time there were a large number of farmers in the area, determined to see that their milk would be accepted at the plant.

According to spectators at the scene, the car was toppled by "big wind."

Five Garrett Firms Cited In Liquor Counts

Three Clubs And Two Hotels Are Accused

OAKLAND — Charges of violations of the Garrett County liquor laws have been placed against five business places in that county. Sheriff Paul W. Fisher said warrants have been placed against the following clubs and hotels:

Manhattan Hotel, Moose Lodge 786; and Proctor Kildow Post 71, American Legion, all of Oakland; VFW Post 8049, Friendsville, and the Arlington Hotel, Grantsville.

The arrests were made Tuesday and Wednesday by Sheriff Fisher and Deputy Edward J. Frantz. The owners or trustees of each establishment were charged with having liquor in their possession for the purpose of sale on certain days within the past month.

Assisting the county authorities in making the arrests were two unidentified state policemen who reportedly had been in the county in civilian apparel, and who reportedly made the purchases which resulted in the arrests.

The clubs and hotels are only licensed to sell beer, authorities stated.

State's Attorney W. Dwight Stover of Garrett County said preliminary hearings for the owners and trustees have been tentatively set for Tuesday morning before Magistrate W. O. Bitzer. The hearings can take place that day, he continued, or else a jury trial before the March term of court may be requested.

State's Attorney Stover said $1,000 bonds have been posted by all who were served warrants.

At the time there were a large number of farmers in the area, determined to see that their milk would be accepted at the plant.

According to spectators at the scene, the car was toppled by "big wind."

Big Construction

Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, points out that it was understood, when the city undertook the Flood Protection program, that no other major project would be started until that project was properly financed and completed.

Here is an unofficial picture of the city's present, authorized and proposed indebtedness:

The city's general debt stood at $3,327,000 on June 30, 1953. The net debt is $2,105,254.34, since there is $1,221,745.66 in the sinking fund to retire term bonds.

Issues Authorized

Five general bond issues have been authorized but unissued. They include:

Flood protection, $400,000. The bonds will be sold within the next few years as funds are asked by the Corps of Engineers.

Recreation, $150,000. Plans are under way to sell this 1947 issue soon.

Urban Development, $350,000. The issue, authorized in 1953, will finance the Frederick Street and a number of other street projects. It will be sold soon.

Industrial Highway, $150,000. The bonds were authorized last year to build the route in South Cumberland. The SRC is to build the highway, a dual in some sections, as part of the overhead expressway plan. It is possible the issue will not be needed.

Off-Street Parking, $350,000. The issue was authorized by the 1953 General Assembly to allow the city to set up a parking authority like Baltimore's. Investment bankers have indicated they are not interested in the issue.

These unauthorized but unissued issues total $1,400,000.

Work Is Proposed

A number of other general bond issues have been proposed. They include:

Flood protection. Estimates of funds which will be needed range from $600,000 to $1,000,000. The exact amount will not be known until the Wills Creek bridges are built and all property acquired, and the city plans to ask the county to help.

Sewage disposal, $2,000,000. This cost estimate was made last year and the actual figure will depend upon whether construction costs rise or fall by the time the work is started. The city is to bear all costs, but the plant will be financed by revenue bonds. Assessments for operation and debt service will be made to property owners the same as water bills.

Street paving, about $200,000. This would be a revolving fund which would allow the construction of more streets. Most of the money would be repaid by property owners.

Officials point out there are large undeveloped areas within the city limits which are most desirable as residential sections. With proper facilities, these areas would meet the demand of those who like the roomy suburban atmosphere.

Sewers, $100,000. The figure is only an estimate since more might be needed if undeveloped areas are to be opened up for homes and small industries.

Off-Street parking, from $300,000 to $500,000. If the city is to provide parking centers, they would be financed through a 1951 revenue bond issue. The chief difficulty is that investors would ask the city to back the issue by pledging some revenues, such as parking meters, and that could raise the tax rate.

Plan Water Projects
At present, the Water Department has a bonded debt of $3,505,000, offset by $1,397,358.61 in the sinking fund to retire term bonds. This makes a net debt of $2,107,641.39.

A $150,000 issue is authorized and is to be sold this spring, along with the Recreation and Urban Development bonds. The water issue will be used to finance modernization of the 12 old filters at Lake Gordon.

This would raise the total water debt to $4,155,000, not counting the sinking fund. The water issues are all revenue bonds, financed from the sale of water. They also bear the full faith and credit of the city.

All told, these unauthorized but unissued bonds, together with the proposed issues, could just about double the present bonded debt.

Only an estimate since more might be needed if undeveloped areas are to be opened up for homes and small industries.

Off-Street parking, from $300,000 to $500,000. If the city is to provide parking centers, they would be financed through a 1951 revenue bond issue. The chief difficulty is that investors would ask the city to back the issue by pledging some revenues, such as parking meters, and that could raise the tax rate.

Issues Authorized

Five general bond issues have been authorized but unissued. They include:

Flood protection, $400,000. The bonds will be sold within the next few years as funds are asked by the Corps of Engineers.

Recreation, $150,000. Plans are under way to sell this 1947 issue soon.

Urban Development, $350,000. The issue, authorized in 1953, will finance the Frederick Street and a number of other street projects. It will be sold soon.

Industrial Highway, $150,000. The bonds were authorized last year to build the route in South Cumberland. The SRC is to build the highway, a dual in some sections, as part of the overhead expressway plan. It is possible the issue will not be needed.

Off-Street Parking, $350,000. The issue was authorized by the 1953 General Assembly to allow the city to set up a parking authority like Baltimore's. Investment bankers have indicated they are not interested in the issue.

These unauthorized but unissued issues total $1,400,000.

Work Is Proposed

A number of other general bond issues have been proposed. They include:

Flood protection. Estimates of funds which will still be needed range from $600,000 to $1,000,000. The exact amount will not be known until the Wills Creek bridges are built and all property acquired, and the city plans to ask the county to help.

Sewage disposal, $2,000,000. This cost estimate was made last year and the actual figure will depend upon whether construction costs rise or fall by the time the work is started. The city is to bear all costs, but the plant will be financed by revenue bonds. Assessments for operation and debt service will be levied.

Allegany Trims Valley, Fort Hill Cops Overtime Battle

Campers Score Ninth Triumph In 88-45 Rout

Hoffman Tallies 30 Points, Takes Lead In City Scoring Race

BY TED TROXELL

Allegany's Campers, anxious to get back in the WMI championship race, after being upset by the Beall Mountaineers Tuesday, unleashed a powerful offensive attack last night on the Campobello floor, with the Valley High Black Knights falling victim to the unmerciful attack, 88-45.

Jim Hoffman, hustling Allegany forward, enjoyed what was probably the best night of his career, as he racked up 30 points, before retiring at the end of the third period.

The Knights looked as if they might stay in the game as they took an early 2-0 lead, on a pair of foul conversions by center Dick Waddell, but after battling on even terms for several minutes of the first period, "the dam broke," and at the end of the first quarter, the charged-up five of Coach Bill Bowers was coasting along on a 23-5 lead.

Fall To Score Goal

The Valley cagers, who were held scoreless from the field in the opening stanza, fared somewhat better in the second quarter, as they brought the margin to 40-18, but a big third quarter, which found Hoffman scoring 14 of his 30 points, tucked the victory away for the Campers, their ninth in ten starts.

Only one player left the game on personal fouls — Valley's Bob Munden making his exit midway in the fourth quarter.

Hoffman, who was virtually unstoppable, hit for twelve field goals, and six of nine fouls, to boost him into the lead in the city scoring race, with a total of 164 points in 10 contests, for a per game average of 16.4 tallies.

Dave Steele, towering Allegany center, dumped in 15 markers to take runnerup honors, but dropped to second place in the city point-producing race. Steele has scored 150 points in 10 contests, for an average of 15 per game.

Waddell Scores 26

Dick Waddell, high scoring Valley center, after being held in nine points in the first half, came back with a rush in the second half, to end up with 26 markers, as he hit on 7 field goals, and 12 of 16 foul tries.

Sentinels Top Beall High In 73-69 Thriller

Baskets By Reitmeier, Andrews, Kerns Decide; Sigler Ties Up Battle

Field goals by Paul Reitmeier, Bob Andrews and Billy Kerns in an overtime battle enabled Fort Hill to eke out a 73-69 win over Beall High School in a W.M.I. League thriller last night at Fort Hill High School.

It marked the second time this week each school had figured in extra period contests. On Tuesday Fort Hill dropped a 57-52 decision to Bruce on the same floor while Beall topped Allegany at Frostburg, 64-58.

Beall led at the quarter, 19-14, at the half, 37-29, and at the close of the third stanza, 52-43. A free throw by Kerns had given Fort Hill a 65-63 advantage in the closing minute of the regulation game and then Jimmy Sigler sent the battle into an overtime heat by sinking a field in the final second to knot the count 65-65.

Kerns was Fort Hill's "big gun" with 21 tallies, including nine field goals. Reitmeier tossed in 19 points, Brant 15, and Gene Weber 13.

Joe Carter led the Mountaineers' attack with eight baskets and 18 points. Pinkney Holmes and Jimmy Smith accounted for 16 points each.

Racing Commission Defers Action On Cumberland Request

Shift To Marlboro Depends On Developments In Future

Story Could Change When Charles Town Dates Are Known

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Maryland Racing Commission today turned a deaf ear—for the time being, anyway—to requests by Cumberland and the harness tracks for changes in this year's set up.

Cumberland wanted permission in advance to run its 10 days Aug. 4-14 at the Marlboro track instead of its own in case Charles Town, W. Va., picks the same dates. The idea is to get away from the near-by West Virginia track and closer to the Washington trade.

The commission took no action on the request which was made by mail.

May Consider Action

"At the present time, we see no reason to grant any change," explained D. Eldred Rinehart, commission chairman. "If something develops in the future to reconsider, that will be a different story."

Rinehart said the future development would be when the Charles Town dates are known.

Representatives of the four harness tracks appeared to ask that their entire schedule be revised to help Ocean Downs avoid competition with the Brandywine track near Wilmington, Del.

Brandywine is to operate Aug. 14 to Sept. 24. The Ocean Downs dates are Aug. 3-28, the last of the harness season in Maryland.

The tracks proposed that Rosecroft start the circuit on May 28, two weeks later than scheduled by the commission, and Ocean Downs follow. Laurel, instead of being second in line, would take the last spot now occupied by Ocean Downs.

The commission turned down this proposal because it would mean competition between two Southern Maryland tracks. Marlboro, a half mile thoroughbred track, would be operating then during the Laurel meeting.

The commission told the harness track representatives it would consider any other proposed changes it might have next week.

Racing Commission Defers Action On Cumberland Request

Shift To Marlboro Depends On Developments In Future

Story Could Change When Charles Town Dates Are Known

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Maryland Racing Commission today turned a deaf ear—for the time being, anyway—to requests by Cumberland and the harness tracks for changes in this year's set up.

Cumberland wanted permission in advance to run its 10 days Aug. 4-14 at the Marlboro track instead of its own in case Charles Town, W. Va., picks the same dates. The idea is to get away from the nearby West Virginia track and closer to the Washington trade.

The commission took no action on the request which was made by mail.

May Consider Action

"At the present time, we see no reason to grant any change," explained D. Eldred Rinehart, commission chairman. "If something develops in the future to reconsider, that will be a different story."

Rinehart said the future development would be when the Charles Town dates are known.

Representatives of the four harness tracks appeared to ask that their entire schedule be revised to help Ocean Downs avoid competition with the Brandywine track near Wilmington, Del.

Brandywine is to operate Aug. 14 to Sept. 24. The Ocean Downs dates are Aug. 5-28, the last of the harness season in Maryland.

The tracks proposed that Rosecroft start the circuit on May 28, two weeks later than scheduled by the commission, and Ocean Downs follow. Laurel, instead of being second in line, would take the last spot now occupied by Ocean Downs.

The commission turned down this proposal because it would mean competition between two Southern Maryland tracks. Marlboro, a half mile thoroughbred track, would be operating then during the Laurel meeting.

The commission told the harness track representatives it would consider any other proposed changes it might have next week.

Hugh Daugherty Named Spartans' Football Coach

Munn Is Appointed Athletic Director

EAST LANSING, Mich., Jan. 15 (AP)—Two old football buddies took over the two top athletic jobs at Michigan State College today.

Head football coach Clarence L. (Biggie) Munn moved up to athletic director to succeed Ralph H. Young.

Hugh (Duffy) Daugherty, his line coach who once played under Munn, became head coach.

Munn will officially succeed Young, the retiring director, effective July 1. Daugherty's appointment also had the July 1 date but Munn said: "As far as I'm concerned, he's head coach right now."

Munn will draw a salary of $16,750 a year—the same pay he made as head coach. He still will be forfeiting an estimated $3,500 he collected yearly for radio and television appearances and speaking engagements.

Daugherty will make $13,000 a year.

Munn has had the No. 1 team in the country, coached the team to victory in the 1952 East-West Shrine game, was named as "coach of the year" in 1952 and bowed out with his Rose Bowl triumph over UCLA on New Year's Day.

As a head coach, Munn won 71 games, lost 16 and tied 3. While at Michigan State, he won 54, lost 9 and tied 2—including the last Rose Bowl game.

Christmas trees are trimmed in almost two out of every three American homes.

Australia's Horse Quarantine Has Olympic Group In Quandary

Considers Proposal To Shift 1956 Games

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Jan. 15 (AP)—"Something is going to have to give," Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said today upon his arrival here for Sunday's special meeting of the IOC Executive Committee.

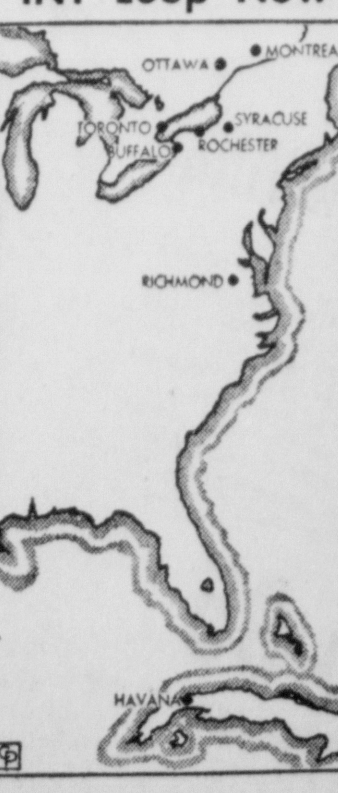

The group will consider a proposal that the 1956 games be withdrawn from Melbourne and awarded elsewhere because of Australia's failure to lift its quarantine on horses.

"Any way you look at it we're going to have to break a rule," Brundage added. "If we decide to let Melbourne keep the games then we would do so in violation of the rule that all events should be held at one site."

"If we find it necessary to move the games then we will go against our original commitment and also the vote of confidence given Melbourne at our Mexico City meeting last April."

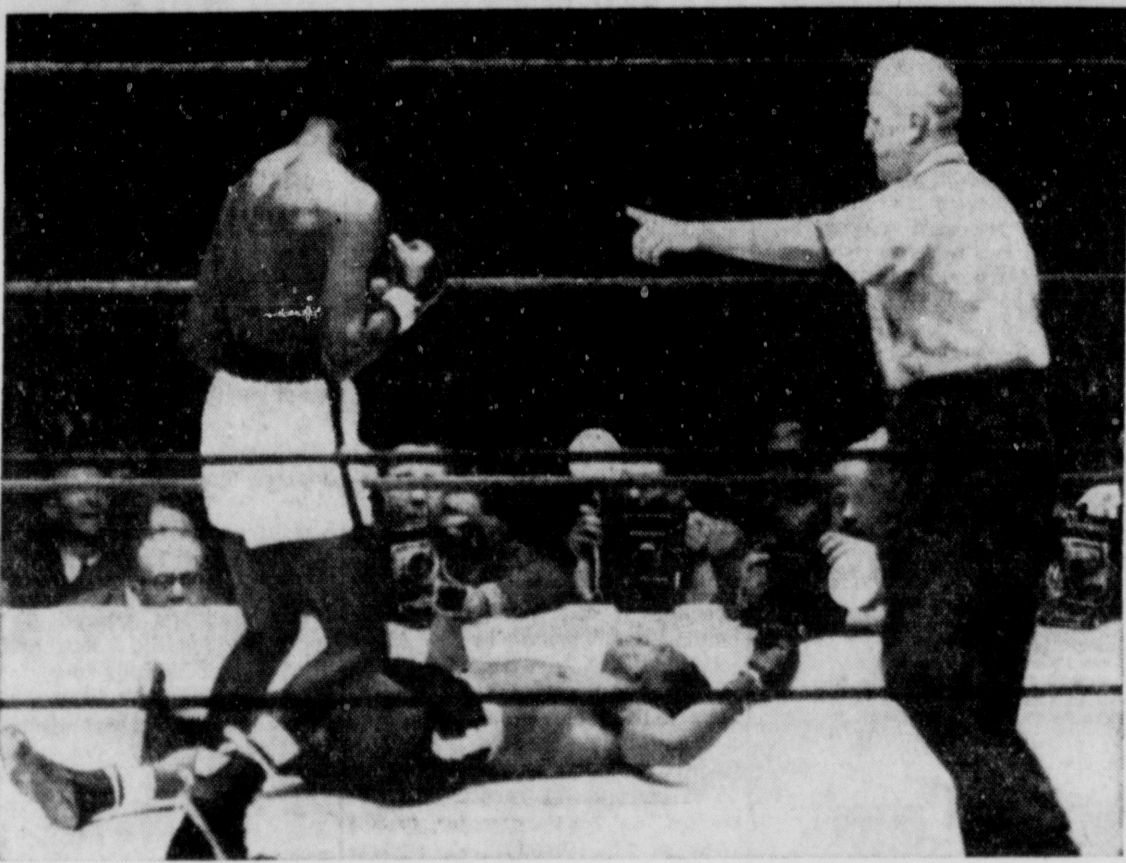

The committee can't take decisive action on the matter. It can only recommend to the IOC general body, which meets early in May at Athens, Greece.

No Bearbaiting In The White House

In Washington press circles the idea of televising Presidential press conferences is still being kicked around. None has ever been televised. While the idea of putting the President on view to all of us is certainly intriguing, it is, I think, a bad idea and should be strenuously resisted.

The fundamental purpose of Presidential press conferences is to obtain information and opinion. The fundamental purpose of anything that happens in front of a camera and is broadcast to mil-

There is a little bit of ham in every one of us and nothing brings it out more quickly than television. Even a President cannot resist putting on a good show. Neither can the reporters. To a certain degree — too great a degree — some questions hurled at the President even now are designed more for headlines than for honest information. Cable TV News: Color TV Report

We are pleased to report to the people of Cumberland that our cable system was designed by R. C. A. to carry Color T. V., and that a demonstration was made over our system with excellent results, even without aligning our amplifiers especially for color amplification.

Our opinion to the public on Color T. V. is that only those that want to spend a lot of money and receive very few programs in color should consider Color T. V. set purchases for the next two years or more.

By that time, color T. V. sets will likely have only 1/10 the amount of electric cost only a fraction of the amount of the earlier models and probably 1/10 as much for maintenance.

You will also want large screen reception and sufficient color programs to watch. It may be practical and very economical to convert your black and white sets to color later on when needed.

Color T. V. will be in its infancy for two or more years, and there will be millions spent weekly during that time to produce and bring you even better programming in black and white, and remember F. C. C. has promised you will always get colored T. V. programs on a black and white set.

Don't put off getting all these programs in your home to select from. It takes modern equipment to bring you full coverage T. V. in Cumberland and Cable T. V. is the only modern way.

We will continue to modernize our system and Cable T. V. will be the most satisfactory and economical way of receiving T. V. in Cumberland, year after year.

We are pleased to report to the people of Cumberland that our cable system was designed by R. C. A. to carry Color T. V., and that a demonstration was made over our system with excellent results, even without aligning our amplifiers especially for color amplification.

Our opinion to the public on Color T. V. is that only those that want to spend a lot of money and receive very few programs in color should consider Color T. V. set purchases for the next two years or more.

By that time, color T. V. sets will likely have only as many parts, use 1/10 the amount of electric, cost only a fraction of the amount of the earlier models and probably 1/10 as much for maintenance.

You will also want large screen reception and sufficient color programs to watch. It may be practical and very economical to convert your black and white set to color later on when needed.

Color T. V. will be in its infancy for two or more years, and there will be millions spent weekly during that time to produce and bring you even better programming in black and white, and remember F. C. C. has promised you will always get colored T. V. programs on a black and white set.

Don't put off getting all these programs in your home to select from. It takes modern equipment to bring you full coverage T. V. in Cumberland and Cable T. V. is the only modern way.

We will continue to modernize our system and Cable T. V. will be the most satisfactory and economical way of receiving T. V. in Cumberland, year after year.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

One letter simple stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Strong Push Puts Market Into New Eight-Month High

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—With a strong and sustained forward push, the stock market today broke into new high ground for the past eight months.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 90 cents at $110.90, the best since late in May. It was the first better than two million share day of this year with the total at 2,180,000 shares. That compares with 1,530,000 shares traded yesterday.

Most major divisions were ahead. Before the close there was a recession from the best that brought on a few minus signs.

One of these was Chrysler, off Niagara Mohawk Power again topped the most active list up 3/4 at 28 1/2 with 47,200 shares traded. General Motors was in second place up 1 1/4 at 62 1/2. Reynolds Tobacco "B" was third up 1/4 at 38 1/2. After that came U. S. Steel up 3/4 at 40 1/4, 20th Century-Fox up 1/2 at 22, and Pan American World Airways up 1/4 at 10 1/4.

Hudson lost 3/4 and Nash was down 1/4 after the official announcement that they plan to consolidate. International Business Machines went to a new 1953-54 high and closed up 8 at 260.

Among higher stocks were American Telephone (which reported earnings last year equal to $10.31 a share), Bethlehem Steel, Westinghouse Electric, Ward Baking, Union Pacific, Illinois Central, and Aluminum Ltd.

Warm Weather, Rain Helps Rid Roads Of Snow

Colder Temperatures Forecast For Tonight

Warmer temperatures yesterday broke winter's hold on the Tri-State, and the Weather Bureau said rain today should complete the job of clearing highways of slush and ice.

But, the Bureau added, the respite from the cold will be short. After a cloudy and mild day today with occasional rain, it is expected to turn colder tonight.

Forecasters said it would be cold Sunday and Monday, warmer Tuesday with snow or rain and more cold weather Wednesday.

Some Roads Still Bad

Although yesterday's warmer air helped melt the snow, including Thursday night's two to four inches, highways in some areas of the Tri-State were still dangerous.

In general, winter was on the run, if only temporarily, after chilling the district for four days with sub-freezing temperatures, hitting it with two snow storms and taking at least four lives.

The Weather Bureau said without heavy rains the thaw will be slow and cut down the chance of melting snow causing floods. Much of the snow probably will run off into the ground to provide moisture for crops and pastures.

Rain falling west of Cumberland had changed to sleet by 8 p.m. yesterday, and Maryland State Police said roads were icy with some fog on the mountains.

Cumberland and sections east were still being dampened by an all-day drizzle last night, and State Police and officials of the State Roads Commission were hoping highways would not freeze later in the night.

Chains Needed In Garrett

G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the SRC, said chains were recommended on all roads except Routes 40 and 50 in Garrett County. There were 14 plows and two graders working yesterday in that county.

In Allegany County, 12 trucks and two auto patrols were plowing and clearing roads. Four of the snowplows were working east of here to the Washington County line.

Chaires said there was no need for chains in Allegany County if care is exercised in driving.

Highways in Washington County were being cleared yesterday and vehicles could travel without chains. It was still raining in that section late last night.

The Allegany County Roads Department began plowing and clearing secondary highways again early yesterday. J. Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor, said all secondary roads were open in the county, but chains are recommended for vehicles traveling on them.

The City Street Department was busy yesterday clearing streets in Cumberland. The department's automatic loader was in use all day on downtown streets. Downtown streets were slushy and practically cleared yesterday, but some of the side streets in the residential areas were still snow covered.

Temperatures were above freezing last night in almost all areas of the Tri-State, but in some sections west of Cumberland, rain had turned to sleet, and roads were becoming icy.

It was raining in the Romney, W. Va. section last night, and West Virginia State Police said roads were still slushy and icy in spots. Drivers were especially warned to be careful on mountainous roads where ice was forming and fog hampered visibility. Temperatures in that area were in the upper 30's.

In the Bedford, Pa. district, a light drizzle was falling and roads were bare but wet. Pennsylvania State Police said chains were not necessary, but drivers should use caution in foggy sections of the highway. Mercury at Bedford at 8 p.m. was 34 degrees.

Fluoridation Plans Are Being Prepared

Detailed plans of the dispensing system installed at Lake Gordon for the fluoridation of city water will soon be sent to health officials of Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia.

George M. Hitchcock, superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company, said the plans are already about 75 per cent complete. Permits from the health departments to allow fluoridation here will be issued on the basis of the drawings. Engineers from the three states have already checked the installation.

The addition of fluorine to the water supply has been approved by city officials as a means of reducing tooth decay.

Mrs. Grace May Fisher, Prominent Theater Operator Here, Dies At Memorial Hospital

MRS. GRACE M. FISHER

Mrs. Grace May Fisher, 66, of 739 Washington Street, wife of Frank L. Fisher, died last evening at Memorial Hospital. She had been in failing health for the past 16 months.

Mrs. Fisher, identified with the theater business here for many years, owned and operated the Maryland Theater at the time of her death. She had taken over operation of this business only a few months ago, after having leased it several years ago to a theater chain.

Mrs. Fisher came to Cumberland about 50 years ago as an organist at the Liberty Theater which was operated by Frank L. Fisher and his brother the late Charles Fisher. She was married to Frank L. Fisher soon after coming here.

In 1926, she purchased the Capitol Theater on Baltimore Street and successfully operated that movie house until it was destroyed by fire in November, 1935. In the meantime, in 1931, she had opened and operated the Embassy Theater on Baltimore Street, and had continued to operate it for many years.

In March 1936, just two weeks before the disastrous flood of March 17, 1936, she purchased the Maryland Theater. After the flood, she remodeled and refurbished this popular old theater and movie house and continued to operate it for a number of years.

She acquired other realty holdings and several years ago leased the Maryland to a theater chain. A few months ago, she again assumed the operation of the Maryland, and until a few days ago, had been active.

During the last few years when she had been away from the theater she operated a dress shop on South Liberty Street and also owned land there which was converted into a parking lot.

Mrs. Fisher was widely known as an astute and able businesswoman. She took an avid interest in community life and always displayed a civic-minded attitude toward the encouragement of culture and good entertainment in the city.

Many times she gave the use of the Maryland theater to local groups interested in sponsoring benefit performances of one worth-while cause or another. At every opportunity, she encouraged the development of local talent in the field of entertainment among the youth of the city.

One of her most recent typical, and yet unpublicized gestures, was an offer of the use of the Maryland theater, its stage and facilities to the newly organized Civic Theater group, sponsored by the Cumberland Recreation Department.

Mrs. Fisher liked people, and liked people to have good, clean and wholesome entertainment. She spent many years of her life in that field, and met with no small degree of success.

She was born in Russell, Ky., May 30, 1887, a daughter of the late Charles E. and Laura C. (Golden) McKnight. She is survived by her husband, a daughter Vivian D. Fisher at home, two stepdaughters, Mrs. George Kraft, this city and Mrs. Norine Dalton, Detroit, Mich., and one grand daughter, Marjorie G. Fisher, at home.

Mrs. Fisher was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, the Daughters of the American Revolution and held an honorary membership in the Variety Club of America.

The body is at the George Funeral Home.

Flintstone School Addition Bids Being Accepted

Will Be Received Until February 11

Bids on the proposed addition to Flintstone School will be opened at 3 p.m., Thursday, February 11, in the office of Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of Allegany County schools.

S. Russ Minter, architect for the project, yesterday said that contractors may receive specifications and other data from his office, 307 South Centre Street.

The addition to the Flintstone School is part of the county's $3,500,000 building program. The project, according to Webster, will be the first of a number of county school improvements expected to get underway this year.

The improvements at Flintstone include a new combination auditorium-gymnasium on the front of the present building, four new classrooms, an office suite for the principal and other officials, a new cafeteria and kitchen, a new boiler room to provide heat for both the old and new building, a new home economics department and a walkway linking the addition to the agriculture shop building which was completed last summer.

Three small jobs, totaling $117,266 were completed last year. Among them were the $61,536 addition to the McCoolle Elementary School, the new $30,240 one-room Lincoln Elementary School in Frostburg, and a $25,490 sewage disposal system at Flintstone to serve both the existing and proposed buildings there.

Union officials said the purpose of the meeting will be discussion and action on the problems which face the TWUA in this area.

Top TWUA officials will be here to discuss the international's policies.

Local 1874 will elect its delegates to the conference at a membership meeting planned next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the union hall.

The Weather

A steady drizzle yesterday helped city road workers with the job of clearing streets of snow, and warmer weather is expected again today. The Weather Bureau said today will be cloudy and somewhat warmer with occasional rain, turning colder tonight. High reading today will be in the 40's. Maximum temperature was 34 degrees officially yesterday, low was 19, and at 7:30 p.m., mercury stood at 33. Humidity at 6 p.m. was 100 per cent.

Ridgeley Police Chief

Pictured above is Daniel Evans, who yesterday took over his uncle's job as Chief of Police in Ridgeley. He succeeds H. L. Henry, who resigned from the position and completed his final day of police work Thursday night. Henry will now devote his full time to his TV lamp and ornament manufacturing business. Evans, an ex-Marine of Carpenter's Addition, was appointed Monday in a special session of the Mayor and City Council, and began his duties today with a new police car which was purchased by the city Wednesday. Evans was chosen from four applicants for the position. Charles Fryer will remain as special officer to assist Evans. The new police chief came to Ridgeley in 1933 and is a furloughed Celanese employee with 17 years service at Amelle. He served in the U. S. Marine Corps for four years with two years duty in Panama.

Murder Victim's Body Found One Year Ago Today

Odessa F. Meister Case Still Unsolved

Today marks one year since the battered body of Mrs. Odessa Frances (Molinar) Meister, 35, formerly of Columbia Street, was found by authorities on McNamee's Hill.

The body of the murdered woman was found January 16, 1953, by two high school students who had played hooky to hunt rabbits. The youths had also buried a dead dog in the area and were checking on the skeleton. The bludgeoned body was noticed when one of the boys kicked a pile of old magazines and a woman's feet in shoes were uncovered.

The wife of Thomas C. Meister disappeared on December 20, 1952, and since her body was found last year, investigators have questioned hundreds of persons and followed thousands of leads, but without success in learning the identity of the slayer.

Mrs. Meister was found lying face down clad in red and black plaid coat, tan skirt, and a scarf was tied around her neck. She was clothed in the same apparel she was wearing when last seen alive.

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, said she had been dead about 25 or 27 days, and an autopsy showed the woman had been hit on the head at least seven times with a blunt instrument. She died of a brain hemorrhage resulting from a skull fracture.

Police have had to work with hardly any clues. No weapon has ever been discovered. Authorities were furnished, on December 28, 1952, with the victim's handbag which was found at Bowman's Addition two miles north of Cumberland and about one and a half miles from where the body was discovered later.

A check of local cleaning businesses and optometrists failed to clear up the question of a pair of eye glasses found near the body, and although many cleaners reported clothing with blood stains, none tied in with the slaying.

Today, a year after the body was discovered, the murder remains Cumberland's most baffling criminal case. At the same time, however, investigators are still following faint leads and working every day on the case.

North End Tank Ready For Test

The 75,000 gallon water tank in North Cumberland is ready for final testing, Water Department officials reported yesterday.

Filling of the tank to test for leaks, however, will be delayed until above-freezing weather arrives.

Four Injured In Accident Reported Fair

Fifth Victim Leaves Hospital

The condition of four Frostburg men, hospitalized Thursday afternoon following a highway mishap near that community, was reported as about the same last night by attaches of Miners Hospital.

A fifth passenger in the car, demolished after being struck by a tractor-trailer on the east slope of Little Savage Mountain, was released from the hospital yesterday morning.

The four men, who were traveling in a funeral cortege, are Philip Krause, 62, of 50 West Mechanic Street, driver of the car; Robert Stewart, 47 East Main Street; Ernest Pfaff, 39, of Bowery Street and Thomas Eisentrout Sr., 72, of West Mechanic Street.

Krause suffered the most severe injuries and his condition, which at first was reported as "bad" is still unchanged. The other men are in fair condition.

The other passenger in the car, James McGuire, 37, of 18 Centennial Street, was discharged from the hospital. State Police Trooper Donald R. Wade said the tractor-trailer, headed toward Frostburg, was driven by William Ronald Stickle, 35, of 118 Blaul Avenue, Cumberland. He was uninjured.

As Stickle descended Little Savage Mountain and rounded the sharp turn at the bridge near the foot of the grade, the trailer skidded and jack-knifed into the path of the Krause car.

Karns Avenue Asks Surfacing Project

Residents of Karns Avenue have submitted a petition to the Mayor and Council asking that the street be given a temporary surfacing.

The type of surface asked is the "light surface treatment" which was used on several streets here last year.

City officials estimate the work will cost property owners about 40 cents a front foot for materials. The city would furnish free labor in lieu of annual oiling.

K Of C To Initiate 100 In Third Degree

Approximately 100 persons will be initiated into the Third Degree of the Knights of Columbus tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. at the home of Cumberland Council 586, KC, according to William V. Keegan, grand knight.

Candidates from Hagerstown, Frederick, Martinsburg and Piedmont are expected to participate. Following the initiation, a dinner will be held on the ground floor of the K of C Home.

Legion Of Moose Will Assemble Here Tomorrow

500 Expected At Eleventh Anniversary

Upwards of 500 members and guests are expected at the home of Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Beall Street, tomorrow for the 11th anniversary banquet of the Potomac Valley Legion No. 66, Legion of the Moose.

Visitors are expected from Moose lodges at Cumberland, Frostburg, Oakland, Romney, Moorefield, Piedmont, Keyser, Charles Town and Berkeley Springs, all of which are a part of Potomac Legion.

A meeting and initiation will be held at 2 p.m. The class to be inducted into this top degree of Moosehood will be named in honor of William Dietrick, member of the local lodge and now a resident at Moose Haven, Fla. Mr. Dietrick was employed as doorman at the Cumberland lodge many years.

At 5:30 p.m. a dinner will be served by Women of the Moose. At 7:30 p.m. a program of entertainment including a floor show is to be presented.

Ralph C. Dusic, Romney, W. Va., State Director of W. Va. Moose; Dr. A. C. Monninger, Hagerstown, past supreme governor of Maryland and A. V. Gallion, noble north Moose, will be speakers. Master of ceremonies will be Frank J. Davis, past noble north Moose and past governor of the local lodge. He is now deputy supreme governor.

Russell Minnick and James Roby are co-chairmen for the entertainment, with Robert E. Snyder and Mrs. Mary Humbertson in charge of the banquet.

Garbage Crews Keep Schedules Despite Storm

The worst snow of the season has made it "pretty tough" for city garbage collection crews. But John Riley, city garbage contractor, said the work has gone forward on schedule this week in spite of the heavy snow.

The crews, he added, were forced to skip night collections on several of the steepest areas. Other trucks were sent to the streets the next day to make pickups during daylight hours, when the work was less hazardous.

A rugged job at any time, the snow and ice has meant more work this week, and virtually all crews have had to work overtime to complete the collections.

Each of the trucks have been using up to five more gallons of gas a night this week, officials said, while creeping over the slippery streets.

Riley said the work can be continued on schedule as long as the streets do not get too icy. He said the annual collection of Christmas trees went off well this year. Two extra open-bed trucks were assigned to the work.

Fort Hill Groups Boost Operetta

Various departments at Fort Hill High School are assisting in preparations for the performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta, "The Mikado," by the a cappella choir and glee clubs in the school auditorium Thursday, February 4.

Cooperating in the project are the art, physical education, home economics, shop and music departments. Directors of the production are Miss E. Annetta Yates and Gordon F. Williams. Assisting are Mrs. Doris Williams, Harold B. Hanson and Miss Helen Smith.

Parts which the nine principal characters will portray include Nuaki Poo, William Shinholt; Ko-Ko, Pat Souders; Poo-Bah, Ralph Mahoney; Fish-Tush, Jack Andrews; the Mikado, Edgar Dawson; Yum-Yum, Joan Luttrell; Peep-Boo, Evangeline Grim; Pettis-Sing, Beverly Reynolds, and Katsisha, Pat Taschenberg.

A matinee will be given for the Fort Hill students. Tickets for the adult performance may be purchased from the school office or at the ticket booth which will be operated in front of St. Paul's Lutheran Church on Baltimore Street on Saturdays and Monday evenings beginning January 23.

Big Construction Program Prompts Studies Of City's Debt Picture

By C. W. Blackburn

Faced with commitments in connection with the biggest construction program in the history of Cumberland, city and civic groups are at work on plans for accomplishing the task with the least impact upon the economy of the community.

The need for a serious appraisal of the present and future financial setup, especially as it affects the bonded debt, has been pointed out by the many construction jobs which will be completed here within the next decade.

Chief among the public works are the $17,000,000 Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Protection program, the Cumberland sewage disposal plant, the proposed Overhead Bridge-expressway plan, the Frederick Street improvement plan, the new Potomac River Bridge at Riverside Park, the C & O Canal Parkway and the completion of the modernization of the city's water system.

Some of these projects will be financed partly or totally by federal and state funds but will require direct or indirect city expenditures which could just about double the city's bonded debt.

A good example is the Flood Protection project. When the plan was set up, local costs of $2,500,000 were to be financed by $1,500,000 of city and $1,000,000 of county bonds. City-sponsored changes in the plan will make it necessary to provide more funds.

These changes include construction of modern bridges at Baltimore, Market and Valley streets, the widening of Valley Street, and the construction of a new Potomac River Bridge.

Original flood control plans called only for replacing parts of the Wills Creek spans so center piers could be removed. Additional funds would have had to have been spent within a few years to repair the rest of the spans, and they would still have been obsolete.

New River Bridge
The new Potomac River bridge

will be jointly financed. The superstructure will be paid for by the State Roads Commissions of Maryland and West Virginia. The city has paid for the cost of abutments and will spend $25,000 for the Maryland approach. The alternative to the extra city spending was to raise the old bridge about seven feet, making the Maryland approach steep, to say the least.

The Overhead Expressway traffic plan, as contained in the SRC's 12-year construction program, will be primarily a state responsibility, if it is adopted. The city's share of this, or of any other major traffic improvement plan which is mutually agreed upon, is not known. The only SRC explanation of local costs is that the commission's engineers are trying to work out a local cost plan which will be advantageous to this and other cities affected by the program.

The Frederick Street improvement program is to be a federal aid project, and present estimates call for the work to cost the city about $250,000. Part of this cost will be borne by the property owners.

Repairs Are Needed
So far as is known, the Parkway should not entail any local cost, unless the city would have to improve access streets.

Modernization of the city's water system, which began with the building of six new filters to bring filtering capacity of the Lake Gordon plant to 18,000,000 gallons of water daily, will include the modernization of the 12 old filters and repairs to Lake Gordon.

The Maryland Board of Health is seeking court action this month on Cumberland's sewage disposal plant.

The project was estimated to cost $2,000,000 last year. The city has the plans and has set aside land for the plant.

Ask More Time
City officials are committed to build the plant but have asked for additional time so they can get some of the other projects out of the way first.

Warm Weather, Rain Helps Rid Roads Of Snow

Colder Temperatures Forecast For Tonight

Warmer temperatures yesterday broke winter's hold on the Tri-State, and the Weather Bureau said rain today should complete the job of clearing highways of slush and ice.

But, the Bureau added, the respite from the cold will be short. After a cloudy and mild day today with occasional rain, it is expected to turn colder tonight.

Forecasters said it would be cold Sunday and Monday, warmer Tuesday with snow or rain and more cold weather Wednesday.

Some Roads Still Bad

Although yesterday's warmer air helped melt the snow, including Thursday night's two to four inches, highways in some areas of the Tri-State were still dangerous.

In general, winter was on the run, if only temporarily, after chilling the district for four days with sub-freezing temperatures, hitting it with two snow storms and taking at least four lives.

The Weather Bureau said without heavy rains the thaw will be slow and cut down the chance of melting snow causing floods. Much of the snow probably will run off into the ground to provide moisture for crops and pastures.

Rain falling west of Cumberland had changed to sleet by 8 p.m. yesterday, and Maryland State Police said roads were icy with some fog on the mountains.

Cumberland and sections east were still being dampened by an all-day drizzle last night, and State Police and officials of the State Roads Commission were hoping highways would not freeze later in the night.

Chains Needed In Garrett

G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the SRC, said chains were recommended on all roads except Routes 40 and 50 in Garrett County. There were 14 plows and two graders working yesterday in that county.

In Allegany County, 12 trucks and two auto patrols were plowing and clearing roads. Four of the snowplows were working east of here to the Washington County line. Chaires said there was no need for chains in Allegany County if care is exercised in driving.

Highways in Washington County were being cleared yesterday and vehicles could travel without chains. It was still raining in that section late last night.

The Allegany County Roads Department began plowing and clearing secondary highways again early yesterday. J. Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor, said all secondary roads were open in the county, but chains are recommended for vehicles traveling on them.

The City Street Department was busy yesterday clearing streets in Cumberland. The department's automatic loader was in use all day on downtown streets. Downtown streets were slushy and practically cleared yesterday, but some of the side streets in the residential areas were still snow covered.

Mercury Climbs

Temperatures were above freezing last night in almost all areas of the Tri-State, but in some sections west of Cumberland, rain had turned to sleet, and roads were becoming icy.

It was raining in the Romney, W. Va. section last night, and West Virginia State Police said roads were still slushy and icy in spots. Drivers were especially warned to be careful on mountainous roads where ice was forming and fog hampered visibility. Temperatures in that area were in the upper 30's.

In the Bedford, Pa. district, a light drizzle was falling and roads were bare but wet. Pennsylvania State Police said chains were not necessary, but drivers should use caution in foggy sections of the highway. Mercury at Bedford at 8 p.m. was 34 degrees.

Fluoridation Plans Are Being Prepared

Detailed plans of the dispensing system installed at Lake Gordon for the fluoridation of city water will soon be sent to health officials of Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia.

George M. Hitchcock, superintendent of the Everts Creek Water Company, said the plans are already about 75 per cent complete.

Permits from the health departments to allow fluoridation here will be issued on the basis of the drawings. Engineers from the three states have already checked the installation.

The addition of fluorine to the water supply has been approved by city officials as a means of reducing tooth decay.

Hambleton Man Dies Of Injuries

Neil Parsons, 28, of Hambleton, W. Va., died yesterday in a Lafayette, Ind., hospital of injuries sustained in an automobile accident there.

A graduate and former star athlete of Parsons High School, Parsons had been employed in construction work in the Indiana town. Details of the fatal accident were not available at his Tucker County home.

The body is being returned to Parsons for burial but funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Mrs. Grace May Fisher, Prominent Theater Operator Here, Dies At Memorial Hospital

MRS. GRACE M. FISHER

Mrs. Grace May Fisher, 66, of 739 Washington Street, wife of Frank L. Fisher, died last evening at Memorial Hospital. She had been in failing health for the past 16 months.

Mrs. Fisher, identified with the theater business here for many years, owned and operated the Maryland Theater at the time of her death. She had taken over operation of this business only a few months ago, after having leased it several years ago to a theater chain.

Mrs. Fisher came to Cumberland about 50 years ago as an organist at the Liberty Theater which was operated by Frank L. Fisher and his brother the late Charles Fisher. She was married to Frank L. Fisher soon after coming here.

In 1926, she purchased the Capitol Theater on Baltimore Street and successfully operated that movie house until it was destroyed by fire in November, 1935. In the meantime, in 1931, she had opened and operated the Embassy Theater on Baltimore Street, and had continued to operate it for many years.

In March 1936, just two weeks before the disastrous flood of March 17, 1936, she purchased the Maryland Theater. After the flood, she remodeled and refurbished this popular old theater and movie house and continued to operate it for a number of years.

She acquired other realty holdings and several years ago leased the Maryland to a theater chain. A few months ago, she again assumed the operation of the Maryland, and until a few days ago, had been active.

During the last few years when she had been away from the theater she operated a dress shop on South Liberty Street and also owned land there which was converted into a parking lot.

Mrs. Fisher was widely known as an astute and able businesswoman. She took an avid interest in community life and always displayed a civic-minded attitude toward the encouragement of culture and good entertainment in the city.

Many times she gave the use of the Maryland theater to local groups interested in sponsoring benefit performances of one worth-while cause or another. At every opportunity, she encouraged the development of local talent in the field of entertainment among the youth of the city.

One of her most recent typical, and yet unpublicized gestures, was an offer of the use of the Maryland theater, its stage and facilities to the newly organized Civic Theater group, sponsored by the Cumberland Recreation Department.

Mrs. Fisher liked people, and liked people to have good, clean and wholesome entertainment. She spent many years of her life in that field, and met with no small degree of success.

She was born in Russell, Ky., May 30, 1887, a daughter of the late Charles E. and Laura C. (Golden) McKnight. She is survived by her husband, a daughter Vivian D. Fisher at home, two step daughters, Mrs. George Kraft, this city and Mrs. Norine Dalton, Detroit, Mich., and one grand daughter, Marjorie G. Fisher, at home.

Mrs. Fisher was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, the Daughters of the American Revolution and held an honorary membership in the Variety Club of America.

The body is at the George Funeral Home.

Flintstone School Addition Bids Being Accepted

Will Be Received Until February 11

Bids on the proposed addition to Flintstone School will be opened at 3 p. m., Thursday, February 11, in the office of Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of Allegany County schools.

S. Russ Minter, architect for the project, yesterday said that contractors may receive specifications and other data from his office, 307 South Centre Street.

The addition to the Flintstone School is part of the county's $3,500,000 building program. The project, according to Webster, will be the first of a number of county school improvements expected to get underway this year.

The improvements at Flintstone include a new combination auditorium-gymnasium on the front of the present building, four new classrooms, an office suite for the principal and other officials, a new cafeteria and kitchen, a new boiler room to provide heat for both the old and new building, a new home economics department and a walkway linking the addition to the agriculture shop building which was completed last summer.

Three small jobs, totaling $117,266 were completed last year. Among them were the $61,536 addition to the McCool Elementary School, the new $30,240 one-room Lincoln Elementary School in Frostburg, and a $25,490 sewage disposal system at Flintstone to serve both the existing and proposed buildings there.

Headquarters for the conference will be the Fort Cumberland Hotel. Local arrangements are in charge of Melvin Harris, business manager of Celanese Local 1874.

Union officials said the purpose of the meeting will be discussion and action on the problems which face the TWUA in this area.

Top TWUA officials will be here to discuss the international's policies.

Local 1874 will elect its delegates to the conference at a membership meeting planned next Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in the union hall.

Social Events To Aid Drive For Polio Fund

Organizations Sponsor Dances

A number of social events for the benefit of the local March of Dimes campaign have been scheduled, according to Charles N. Wilkinson, Cumberland chairman.

Through the cooperation of members of local National Guard Companies, a public round and square dance will be held at the Maryland State Armory, South Centre Street, January 22.

Music for the affair will be furnished by the Rhythm Ramblers and admission will be three times. Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will hold a public dance January 16 at the post home with all the proceeds donated to the polio fund, according to George Speis, commander.

Music will be provided by Tommy Smith and his band. On January 29, a public dance, being promoted as a March of Dimes Ball, will be held at Clary Club, through the cooperation of the club management. Admission will be ten times. A first class orchestra is being booked for the occasion, Wilkinson said, and a 45-minute floor show, featuring the best in local and area talent is to be presented.

The following night, January 30, Cumberland Lodge No. 63 will hold a March of Dimes dance at the Elks home on South Centre Street. A floor show and entertainment is being arranged there, with all proceeds to go to the polio fund.

Wilkinson said early returns indicate good support to the drive, but much more money and cooperation are needed here if Cumberland is to contribute its full share of the county quota.

Machine Failure At Kelly Causes Partial Shutdown

Maintenance men and mechanics last night were still working on a large tubing machine which broke down at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company yesterday morning.

A spokesman for the company said the breakdown would probably effect all production and most of the departments would be idle until Tuesday morning.

Officials pointed out mechanics are expected to repair the piece of machinery by Monday evening, and departmental work at the plant is tentatively scheduled to resume at 7 a. m. Tuesday.

The breakdown at about 10 a. m. yesterday will not affect all departments, officials said, and some of those made idle by the incident are expected to begin Monday.

Emmanuel Methodist Cancels Service

The congregation of Emmanuel Methodist Church will not have the regular evening worship service tomorrow night.

Instead the group will attend the sacred musical concert being presented by the Westminster Seminary Choir at Centre Street Methodist Church at 8 p. m. Sunday.

Long Range Plan Asked On Sewage

Facilities Needed In 308 Communities

By HUELL WARREN

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15 (AP)—The State Board of Health today debated what to do about a "rough estimate" that Maryland's communities need 75 million dollars worth of new sewage disposal and water works now and in the next five years.

Robert M. Brown, chief of the bureau of environmental hygiene in the State Health Department, warned board members it is one of the gravest problems confronting the state.

Financing and building the needed facilities, he said, "will touch almost every person and pocketbook in Maryland."

In the discussion among the board members, it was decided Dr. George M. Anderson, who also is a member of the State Planning Commission, should see if that agency would undertake a long-range scheme for designing a solution to the problem.

Some members suggested help would be needed from representatives of the General Assembly, the State's experts in financing, the Department of Public Improvements, the Water Pollution Control Commission, the interstate commission on the Potomac River, and other state agencies.

The inventory which showed 75 million dollars worth of sewer and water works needed was drawn up by George L. Hall, chief of the health department's division of sanitary engineering.

It showed 167 communities in the state needing either new sewage plants or additions to the present facilities.

It showed 308 communities needing improvements or additions for their water plants.

Brown said the greater part of the money required will be available under the "orderly scheduled programs" of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, the Anne Arundel County Sanitary District, the Baltimore County Metropolitan District and Baltimore City.

The pinch will come, he said, in smaller communities where officials of local government say they don't have enough money to provide the facilities.

Faces Court Action

Brown reported the worst pollution situation was at Cumberland and he said his staff was puzzled over how to tackle the state-wide problem when it could not get the Cumberland problem solved.

A board order directing Cumberland to improve its sewage disposal is now being contested in the courts.

He said the water supply situation in the Baltimore area is also so tight that industries hesitate to locate there.

In some cases, Brown said, communities just can't pay for the facilities they need. He cited the case of North Beach in Calvert County. It attempted to float a $325,000 bond issue for a sewage disposal plant but banking interests would not bid on more than $200,000 worth.

Some of these projects will be financed partly or totally by federal and state funds but will require direct or indirect city expenditures which could just about double the city's bonded debt.

A good example is the Flood Protection project. When the plan was set up, local costs of $2,500,000 were to be financed by $1,500,000 of city and $1,000,000 of county bonds. City-sponsored changes in the plan will make it necessary to provide more funds.

These changes include construction of modern bridges at Baltimore, Market and Valley streets, the widening of Valley Street, and the construction of a new Potomac River Bridge.

Original flood control plans called only for replacing parts of the Wills Creek spans so center piers could be removed. Additional funds would have had to have been spent within a few years to repair the rest of the spans, and they would still have been obsolete.

New River Bridge

The new Potomac River bridge

will be jointly financed. The superstructure will be paid for by the State Roads Commissions of Maryland and West Virginia. The city has paid for the cost of abutments and will spend $25,000 for the Maryland approach. The alternative to the extra city spending was to raise the old bridge about seven feet, making the Maryland approach steep, to say the least.

The Overhead Expressway traffic plan, as contained in the SRC's 12-year construction program, will be primarily a state responsibility if it is adopted. The city's share of this, or of any other major traffic improvement plan which is mutually agreed upon, is not known. The only SRC explanation of local costs is that the commission's engineers are trying to work out a local cost plan which will be advantageous to this and other cities affected by the program.

The Frederick Street improvement program is to be a federal aid project, and present estimates call for the work to cost the city about $250,000. Part of this cost will be borne by the property owners.

Repairs Are Needed

So far as is known, the Parkway should not entail any local cost, unless the city would have to improve access streets.

Modernization of the city's water system, which began with the building of six new filters to bring filtering capacity of the Lake Gordon plant to 18,000,000 gallons of water daily, will include the modernization of the 12 old filters and repairs to Lake Gordon.

The Maryland Board of Health is seeking court action this month on Cumberland's sewage disposal plant.

The project was estimated to cost $2,000,000 last year. The city has the plans and has set aside land for the plant.

Ask More Time

City officials are committed to build the plant but have asked for additional time so they can get some of the other projects out of the way first.

Pictured above is Daniel Evans, who yesterday took over his uncle's job as Chief of Police in Ridgeley. He succeeds H. L. Henry, who resigned from the position and completed his final day of police work Thursday night. Henry will now devote his full time to his TV lamp and ornament manufacturing business. Evans, an ex-Marine of Carpenter's Addition, was appointed Monday in a special session of the Mayor and City Council, and began his duties today with a new police car which was purchased by the city Wednesday. Evans was chosen from four applicants for the position. Charles Fryer will remain as special officer to assist Evans. The new police chief came to Ridgeley in 1933 and is a furloughed Celanese employee with 17 years service at Amelle. He served in the U. S. Marine Corps for four years with two years duty in Panama.

Murder Victim's Body Found One Year Ago Today

Odessa F. Meister Case Still Unsolved

Today marks one year since the battered body of Mrs. Odessa Frances (Molinar) Meister, 35, formerly of Columbia Street, was found by authorities on McNamee's Hill.

The body of the murdered woman was found January 16, 1953, by two high school students who had played hooky to hunt rabbits. The youths had also buried a dead dog in the area and were checking on the skeleton. The bludgeoned body was noticed when one of the boys kicked a pile of old magazines and a woman's feet in shoes were uncovered.

The wife of Thomas C. Meister disappeared on December 20, 1952, and since her body was found last year, investigators have questioned hundreds of persons and followed thousands of leads, but without success in learning the identity of the slayer.

Mrs. Meister was found lying face down clad in red and black plaid coat, tan skirt, and a scarf was tied around her neck. She was clothed in the same apparel she was wearing when last seen alive.

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, said she had been dead about 25 or 27 days, and an autopsy showed the woman had been hit on the head at least seven times with a blunt instrument. She died of a brain hemorrhage resulting from a skull fracture.

Police have had to work with hardly any clues. No weapon has ever been discovered. Authorities were furnished, on December 28, 1952, with the victim's handbag which was found at Bowman's Addition two miles north of Cumberland and about one and a half miles from where the body was discovered later.

A check of local cleaning businesses and optometrists failed to clear up the question of a pair of eye glasses found near the body, and although many cleaners reported clothing with blood stains, none tied in with the slaying.

Today, a year after the body was discovered, the murder remains Cumberland's most baffling criminal case. At the same time, however, investigators are still following faint leads and working every day on the case.

Four Injured In Accident Reported Fair

Fifth Victim Leaves Hospital

The condition of four Frostburg men, hospitalized Thursday afternoon following a highway mishap near that community, was reported as about the same last night by attaches of Miners Hospital.

A fifth passenger in the car, demolished after being struck by a tractor-trailer on the east slope of Little Savage Mountain, was released from the hospital yesterday morning.

The four men, who were traveling in a funeral cortege, are Philip Krause, 62, of 50 West Mechanic Street, driver of the car; Robert Stewart, 47 East Main Street; Ernest Pfaff, 39, of Bowery Street and Thomas Eisentrout Sr., 72, of West Mechanic Street.

Krause suffered the most severe injuries and his condition, which at first was reported as "bad" is still unchanged. The other men are in fair condition.

The other passenger in the car, James McGuire, 37, of 18 Centennial Street, was discharged from the hospital. State Police Trooper Donald R. Wade said the tractor-trailer, headed toward Frostburg, was driven by William Ronald Stickley, 35, of 118 Blau Avenue, Cumberland. He was uninjured.

As Stickley descended Little Savage Mountain and rounded the sharp turn at the bridge near the foot of the grade, the trailer skidded and jack-knifed into the path of the Krause car.

Karns Avenue Asks Surfacing Project

Residents of Karns Avenue have submitted a petition to the Mayor and Council asking that the street be given a temporary surfacing.

The type of surface asked is the "light surface treatment" which was used on several streets here last year.

City officials estimate the work will cost property owners about 40 cents a front foot for materials. The city would furnish free labor in lieu of annual oiling.
